THE ARCHITECTURAL style for Coast Ranch, a $20 million senior housing complex slated for the Odello property on the east side of Highway 1, will be that of a "rustic farmhouse" concept. The project will include a farmers' market, restaurant and some employee housing. Plans call for 16 "clubhouses," 104 duplexes, and 21 detached single-family homes, plus grass tennis courts, infirmary, health club with indoor/outdoor pool, walking paths and transportation to and from shopping areas.

Odellos reveal plans for housing development

By DAVID LELAND

AFTER MORE than three decades of haggling, bargaining and flat-out refusals from local officials, the Odello family may have finally come up with proposal for their artichoke fields on the east side of Highway 1 that may receive an endorsement from Monterey County.

In the late 1950s the 134-acre parcel, located near the mouth of the Carmel River, was slated for 1,844 housing units. But throughout the years that was scaled down to 162 units of single-family dwellings.

Now, under a new proposal, the $20 million project will primarily serve as a home for seniors and will be called "Coast Ranch." The Odellos also plan to operate a restaurant, farmer's market and some employee housing on the land.

"The typical user will be in their 70s or older and have the ability to continue an independent lifestyle, but wants access to security and infirmary," according to independent project consultant Martin Fenton.

If realized, the new subdivision will include 16 800-square foot "clubhouses," 104 1,100-square foot duplexes, 21 1,400-square foot detached homes, plus grass tennis courts, infirmary, health club with indoor/outdoor pool, walking paths and transportation to and from shopping centers.

"Plans in the past maybe haven't addressed community needs," said project director Barry Throgmorton, Bruna Odello's son-in-law. "Now we're doing the finest job we can do."

Also under the plan, artichoke farming will remain on slightly more than 50 acres, while about 26 acres will remain open space.

"We feel now that we are presenting a project that has a lot of support," said Coast Ranch consultant Denise Duffy. "It's (now) a partnership between the family and (county) flood control.

Indeed, one of the principal stumbling blocks for the Odellos throughout the years has been the county's insistence on using at least part of the land for channeling flood waters away from The Crossroads shopping center side of the Carmel River and onto vacant land.

"The key to the whole project is to provide flooding to the underdeveloped area," said Owen Stewart, a county developmental services engineer. "We don't want to hold up that process."

The county is currently in the midst of a $180,000, two-year study which will come up with the necessary engineering recommendations for the flood channeling of the Carmel River.

Stewart added that the study already directs the Odellos to lower the levee on the north end of their land by 1 foot to let water drain onto the artichoke fields in case of a flood.

Under a previous agreement with the county the Odellos are responsible for that work, which by Stewart's estimates could range as high as $100,000.

Duffy added that it will be at least a year before the project can begin, with the first task being the preparation of an environmental impact report for the Monterey County Board of Supervisors.

THE NEW Odello project also appears to have gained support from 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman, who has maintained a vigilant stance in an attempt to control any building on the property until flood control is in place.

"That was seen as a tradeoff for their (Odellos) willingness to participate in the flood control project," she said, referring to an agreement between the county and the Odellos to provide flood control. "It's im-

Double deprivation

Dear Editor:

What kind of improvement is taking place at Carmel's unique Carl Cherry Foundation? When it was reopened and re-activated in 1976 (and there are those who well remember the struggle to bring this about), the foundation had, as now, little money; but it had riches. It had the paintings and drawings of Jeanne D'Orge, and was able to resume showing them, however informally, in the gallery she had created. Jeanne's characterful, oceanic vision was generously, pervasively there, to be learned from and to give stability, inspiration and energy whereby the foundation came alive to a relationship of friendly exchange with the community at large.

It is not so now. Though the building is open, the works of Jeanne D'Orge are relegated mostly to a corner in her own gallery — a situation hardly just to other exhibitors, to viewers or to Jeanne herself. We know of course that Jeanne's will, which provided for the gallery for her work, was long ago set aside; but even so, to observe the terms of her bequest is not costly or difficult. Such honoring enriches all who visit, and bestows sanction and focus on other activities.

Now, as further depletion to the point of reducing the foundation to a hollow sham of itself, the directors propose the placement of the records of Carl and Jeanne Cherry's lives and works in some other institution away from the Monterey Peninsula. True, the paintings apparently are to remain at the foundation, but such a dismemberment would surely result in a double deprivation: both to the foundation itself (for sound, future-oriented direction requires fully-studied and sympathetic familiarity with previous vision and practice), and to the community as a whole. The foundation would lose the priceless quality which has distinguished it from arts organizations with an "art as commodity" basis — its organic wholeness, which has stemmed from the perceptions of Jeanne herself, for whom poetry and art were vital, unsellable functions.

I for one quite understand the conventional rationale for such dismemberment, and the storage and maintenance problems involved in keeping both records and works of art in an old, inconvenient building. But there are factors here which are asking for some unusual, extended consideration. In a letter published in the Carmel Pine Cone, Feb. 7, 1985, a visitor to the gallery wrote:

"I...impress upon your community the richness of your legacy from the artist who has gifted you....You have present within your environs a memorial which links all the multiple levels of reality, matter and spirit, natural and supernatural in a remarkable use of materials by the artist...You have on Guadalupe Street clues and keys to a kingdom quite possibly a part of our past and curiously reminiscent of our future."

Surely a worthy accolade! Is the essential matrix of these "clues and keys" to evolutionary development (and the Cherrys sought such), to be separated from the art it produced, and be lost to Carmel to go into the all-too-often sterile guardianship of a conventional institution elsewhere — and this at a time when the world stands in need of non-monolithic, neighborly thinking as never before?

The arts deserve better, and so do the values the Cherrys served and for which the little foundation was created.

Role reversal

Dear Mr. Farr:

The implications of the methods you have employed to obtain input from the community on design changes to the Hatton Canyon Freeway are very disturbing.

Over 30 elected and appointed government officials and community representatives were invited to your September 1987 meeting on design changes. However, all but a couple of the 16 community representatives are known to oppose the freeway, regardless of its design! Furthermore, up until 24 hours before that meeting, your office told the public they were not welcome. After your staff was contacted by the media, the meeting was opened "to anyone who wanted to just listen."

There was no notice published that you were going to hold a meeting on Dec. 9, 1987 to discuss a major design change to the freeway. The secrecy surrounding this affair broke down only three hours before it took place, but in time for the press to assign a reporter to cover the meeting. Fortunately for the interested public, details of the discussions at the meeting were printed the next day in a border-lined article.

You asked me if I would be willing to participate in these meetings to achieve an acceptable freeway design. I accepted the invitation, and informed you that it was my opinion that Caltrans engineers were more qualified to design a safe highway than were local citizens, or their hired architects. You responded and agreed with, I quote, "my characterization of the competence of the Caltrans staff"; however, I did not receive an invitation to your December meeting. Neither did others I know, who have accepted your invitation to participate in these discussions, but whose views are inconsistent with yours. The exclusion of these citizens from your meetings is hardly in keeping with the best principles of democratic representation.

The December meeting focused on the Carmel Valley Road interchange. The District Director of Transportation has informed you that "an inverted interchange plan, with the highway crossing under Carmel Valley Road, cannot be designed with good traffic safety features." I interpret his statement to mean that Caltrans engineers are truly concerned that an inverted interchange would raise the chances for accidents, injuries, and fatalities. I, too, am concerned because I drive through the proposed location nearly every day.

You have furnished me with correspondence which indicates that a discordant controversy is in progress between you and Caltrans over the interchange design. A third party, Greiner Engineering Sciences Inc., is being hired to study and try to settle the issue. Members of the community who are satisfied with the Caltrans design have not been asked to contribute their views to the study. Therefore, in all probability, the study's conclusions and recommendations will be slanted in favor of the biased group which is paying Greiner some $15,000 for its work. To me, this does not ring true of an

Planners to decide on city's last vacant commercial lot

THE CARMEL Planning Commission will reconsider the development of the last vacant lot in the commercial district when it meets at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 13 in Carmel City Council Chambers.

Property owner Jack Hakim's designs for two small buildings on a lot located behind Sade's bar on Ocean Avenue between Lincoln and Monte Verde streets was rejected by the planning commission last December.

The lot cannot be seen from the public right of way but it is a part of the interior of the Court of the Golden Bough and adjacent to the future location of Spencers Stationery.

The commission asked contractor Alan Williams to redesign the project because it felt two buildings would make the courtyard overly crowded.

However, Williams has not submitted new plans so the commission will reconsider the plans it rejected.

In other business, the commission is scheduled to:

- Conduct a study session on a proposed second-story ordinance that revises setbacks and open space requirements for second-floor additions. A public hearing on the ordinance is scheduled for Jan. 27.

aboveboard undertaking.

Furthermore, there are only two types of sources of money — public and private. The press quoted your chief-of-staff as saying that "Greiner will be paid for its help, with most of the money coming from private sources." If the quotation is correct, the statement implies that not all of the money will come from private sources, leaving a balance to be paid from public sources. May I be advised of the source for the public money?

Mr. Farr, you are certainly aware that every concerned local governmental agency, and the vast majority of interested civic and citizens groups, are on record as supporting the Hatton Canyon Freeway. Evidence of this fact may be found on page X-4 of the Draft Environmental Impact Statement. Sen. Mello, Sen. Maddy, and Assemblyman Seastrand have publicly indicated their strong support for timely construction of the freeway. The Chief, Division of Highways and Program Development, informed me in a letter dated Sept. 25, 1987, that members of the California Transportation Commission are aware of the continued strong public support for the freeway.

I have reviewed my file of newspaper articles, and letters from you, back to the time of the recession matter in February 1983. I cannot find any statement that you unequivocally support the Hatton Canyon Freeway.

You have been warned by Caltrans and federal highway officials that undertaking major design changes at this point in time will require a Supplemental Environmental Impact Statement which would seriously set back the environmental review process, already two years behind schedule, and threaten completion of the project.

In view of all of the above, it appears to me that you have taken up the cause of the minority, which is composed of politically-affiliated groups and individuals who oppose the freeway, and who endorse the alternative of widening Highway 1. Having accepted a mandate from them to assist in accomplishing their goals, the strategy decided upon was to create delays to the environmen-

- Consider an amendment to Sunset Shoes' use permit that would allow the sale of clothing.

- Consider a use permit for a camera store in Carmel Plaza.

- Consider a use permit for Monterey Baking Company in the current location of Hector de Smet's Bakery on Ocean Avenue.

R-4 rezoning discussion scheduled

THE CARMEL Planning Commission will once again be facing an R-4 issue when it meets at 3:30 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 13 in Carmel City Council Chambers.

The commission will consider a request by R-4 property owner Olive Smith to rezone her lot on Mission Street from R-4 to residential-commercial. Because Smith's single lot is located in the center a block zoned R-4, the commission will discuss changes in her property's zoning designation and how much of that area it will rezone to RC.

The primary difference between the two zones is new motels are allowed in the RC district while they are not allowed in both the existing and proposed zoning of the R-4 district.

Smith requested the rezone from the Carmel City Council last December and the council referred the matter to the planning commission.

tal process by endless haranguing over design changes. I suspect that the long-range strategy of the minority includes litigation on environmental grounds to protect the blacktailed deer and the "musical call of Swainson's thrush," supposedly abounding in the Hatton Canyon.

This crusade, if successful, would put the entire project in such jeopardy that it would lose its already precarious funding status and be removed from the State Transportation Improvement Program, and 30 years of hard work will be destroyed.

I have spoken with others, both in the community and the state government, about my conclusions, and they sadly agree that my fears may be well-founded.

I am advised by Caltrans that the schedule to start work on contract plans is now July 1988, and construction work to start very early in 1990.

Hopefully, compromises can be worked out to meet that schedule.

I would appreciate your comments.
Respectfully,

William N. Thies

Danger spots

Dear Editor:

It seems to me that two of the most dangerous spots to drive on the peninsula are where Munras Avenue joins Highway 1 approaching the Pebble Beach exit, and near the Navy school where the road from Monterey joins the Salinas exit and Highway 1.

As I recall these were the two interchanges which local people redesigned because they didn't like those planned by the state highway department at that time.

Now other local people are trying to redesign the interchanges at Rio Road and Carpenter and I wonder if they would leave us with two more dangerous spots.

I think this should be very carefully looked into before changing the Caltrans plans and have the agreement of the latter that these changes will not create another dangerous highway on the peninsula.

Eastwood settles an old score with Maradei

By DAVID LELAND

MAYOR CLINT Eastwood flexed his formidable political muscle this week when he led the Carmel City Council down a path of revenge, targeting former councilman David Maradei.

In the process, the council overturned (3-1, with Councilman Jim Wright dissenting and Eastwood abstaining), a Carmel Planning Commission decision which granted Maradei and Judith Wolfe a variance to construct a gable on the roof of their home that is 1½ feet higher than the city code allows.

Eastwood appeared to take particular pleasure in reading aloud from a letter he received from Maradei and late Councilwoman Helen Arnold four years ago, which denied his design for an elevator shaft that would stick up 1½ feet higher than the city allows at his proposed building on San Carlos Street because of a 1983 moratorium on second stories.

'I'm not suprised — I knew this would happen. I think it's clear that David's (Maradei) past politics influenced this.'

— Judith Wolfe

FORMER CARMEL City Councilman David Maradei's politics came home to roost this week when the Carmel City Council denied a variance for his home, which he co-owns with Judith Wolfe.

"To me this stinks of the worst type of cynicism — obviously I'm prejudiced," Eastwood told the council after reading the letter. "I'm going to do something that he never did for me — I'm going to abstain (from voting)."

Even though Eastwood did not take part in the vote, it was perhaps the loudest abstention in recent memory.

It was after being repeatedly denied building permits by the former council that Eastwood decided to enter local politics under a platform of catering to resident-oriented businesses.

"I'm admitting it's a personal matter," said Eastwood, his voice rising above its usual whisper. "I feel it's extremely cynical when somebody that knows better puts the council in a double standard position."

The mayor said he was referring to not only the unanimous decision by the planning commission, which would make it appear that the council did not support it, but the measure also put the council in the position of alienating a former councilmember.

Planning Commission Chairman Ken White, in a telephone interview, said he was dismayed that the council based its decision on personalities rather than law.

"The planning commission has to look at each applicant on his merit with regard to the codes and the general plan," he said. "The council apparently has somewhat of different freedom than we do."

While White said he is a strong proponent of the appeals process, he fears that if grudges are brought in, the picture will become distorted.

"They're (council) going to open a door for more appeals because appeals are going to be a little more emotional," he said. "I hope they'll be careful."

White said he was speaking for most of the commission in his statement to The Pine Cone.

"We were a little suprised to see other issues come into it that we are unable to use in our deliberations," he said.

THE APPEAL had been brought to the city by Fergus Tobin, who owns the home next door to Maradei and Wolfe, and claimed that the variance would interfere with his view and limit the sunlight to his house.

Wolfe said she was somewhat suprised at Tobin's appeal because he moved to Pebble Beach more than a year ago and now rents the home.

Wolfe, representing herself and Maradei at the meeting, told the council that, due to the 26 percent slope on the lot, the architect said this was the only plan that would work, which presented a hardship.

In other words, the central defense of Maradei and Wolfe was the "hardship of the land," which under the law is one of the situations in which a variance can be granted.

The voting councilmembers based their opinions on two issues: the hardship of the land and whether the public had sufficient time to review the plans before the planning commission approved them.

"I'm not sure the hardship of the land has been significantly addressed here," said Councilman Bob Evans, who suggested that the gable be lowered. "This is kind of an 'iffy' case because the planning commission was unanimous, but it seems to me that there is grounds for appeal."

Under questioning, however, Wolfe maintained that it would not be economically feasible to lower that part of the roof without changing the rest of the plans — again, a hardship.

It should be noted that the remainder of the roof comes in under the 24-foot height limit.

Dissenting councilman Wright, the only member of the council from the previous administration, said he believed that the slope of the land was a major factor in dictating the plans and demonstrated a hardship to the owners.

He also said that many applicants coming before the planning commission submit plans at the last minute — it's considered standard practice.

'The planning commission has to look at each applicant on his merit with regard to the codes and the general plan. The council apparently has somewhat of different freedom than we do.'

— Ken White

But Councilwoman Elinor Laiolo disagreed, saying the public process is aborted if there is not time to peruse the drawings, siding with the majority of the council.

"It was negligence not to give opponents an opportunity to comment," she said.

WOLFE APPEARED to take the loss in stride as she left the meeting.

"I'm not suprised — I knew this would happen," she said. "I think it's clear that David's (Maradei) past politics influenced this."

Maradei, contacted the next day by telephone, said he would not comment on the decision until he had time to review the tapes of the meeting.

Even though Wolfe said comments by

'I'm admitting it's a personal matter, I feel it's extremely cynical when somebody that knows better puts the council in a double standard position.'

— Mayor Clint Eastwood

councilmembers were harsh, it would have probably been more difficult if Maradei had come with her.

"We thought that it would be worse if he came," she said, adding that Maradei had offered to accompany her. "I don't have any (political) baggage with me."

Moreover, Wolfe said just because she was co-owner in a house with Maradei, she came out on the short end of the stick.

"I was being punished for David's politics," she said, "which I don't agree with anyway."

MAYOR CLINT Eastwood abstained from voting on the variance at this week's council meeting, but not before he had read aloud from a 4-year-old letter from David Maradei and Helen Arnold which cited reasons for denying a variance for Eastwood's proposed building on San Carlos Street. ## Maximum buildout would mean 850 more homes in city

By NANCY HILLS

FULL BUILDOUT by the city of Carmel could result in the addition of 851 new multi- and single-family residences and an undetermined number of new employees, according to an initial study of the city's general plan.

The growth projection is part of report compiled by Denise Duffy & Associates of Monterey that evaluates the environmental impact of changes proposed for the general plan in preparation for an upcoming public hearing on Jan. 20. Copies of the initial study and the draft general plan are available at the Carmel Planning Department.

The report finds no significant environmental impacts resulting from the proposed changes in the general plan re-revised over the past few months by the planning commission from the General Plan Committee's version.

"Adoption of the revised plan will not alter general land use designations, locations or development, nor result in any direct development or environmental impacts," the report states.

As revised by the planning commission after five public hearings, the proposed general plan retains much of the 1984 version now used by the city.

According to the study, full buildout projections remain virtually unchanged in both the 1984 general plan version and the revised edition the planning commission has produced. However, new studies have made it easier to project the potential for development within the city limits.

Full buildout is determined by comparing what is permitted through code regulations — such as density — and available land and/or expansion opportunities in each zoning district.

Included in the projections are vacant lots of record, possible lot line adjustments to create more than one lot out of what is perceived as a single parcel and — a very important source of development opportunities in Carmel — second-story additions in the commercial district.

The potential 851 new residences in the city includes new homes in the residential district, new apartments in all the commercial zones, and development of the R-4 district.

Statistics supplied by the planning department show that there are 111 vacant lots of record within the residential zone and 94 new lots created from multiple-lot parcels. Those lots can add 205 new homes to the 2,589 houses already in town.

Another 106 new multi-family units are possible in the R-4 district, the report states, and 540 units can be built in the rest of the commercial district, primarily from second-story additions.

If residential unit full buildout is achieved, residences in the entire city would grow from the current 3,204 residential units to 4,055.

Additionally, not added in the numbers are 663 potential lots that could be created from splits of existing properties that already have a home on the parcel. Since it is impossible to know how many of those splits are feasible, no projections were based on those parcels.

JUDGING GROWTH in the commercial district depends on what policies the city decides to enact.

If future second-story additions or building in the commercial district are dedicated to residential use, then projected increases in commercial space and employees is correspondingly reduced. The proposed general plan has a policy which states all future second-story building should be for residential use only.

If all second-story construction in the downtown area is dedicated to commercial use — offices and service-oriented businesses — then Carmel can expect an additional 860 new employees in the next 35 years.

If second-story growth is residential, then the increase in employees would be substantially reduced. Commercial growth can continue through such practices as the division of existing spaces and first-floor additions to existing buildings.

Second-story construction, the report states, "could have an adverse effect upon the village atmosphere and scale, if not designed properly."

The planning commission is presently working on a new second-story ordinance which it hopes will decrease the impact of second stories in the commercial district. The new ordinance is coupled with policies in the general plan.

"The revised general plan also retains a policy to control the scale and mass of two-story buildings through design review and indicates that guidelines should retain design flexibility, should not be so restrictive that all buildings look alike, and should recognize that in certain areas, the absence of setbacks is positive and contributes to the character of Carmel," the Duffy study states.

The planning commission could approve the revisions at that meeting, then send it to the Carmel City Council. Only the council has the authority to change the general plan.

After the public hearing, the planning commission will vote on what version it wishes to recommend to the Carmel City Council for approval.

portant for both the county and the Odellos."

Strasser Kauffman also applauded the architecture of the buildings that are slated for construction at the base of the hills.

"It's a neater subdivision and it will probably have far less visual impact," said Strasser Kauffman of the rustic-style buildings planned for the project. "I think they are moving in the right direction."

With the adoption of the local coastal plan last month, the county will now have the job of granting coastal permits for the subdivision instead of the state Coastal Commission.

Even though Strasser Kauffman fought unsuccessfully last spring to include the Odello property in the Carmel Valley Master Plan, she managed to have the maximum buildout of 162 units subtracted from the 20-year buildout planned for the valley.

By doing this, theoretically at least, any building on the Odello land will not affect the trigger mechanisms that govern the valley's developmental process.

"We took out the maximum building allowed just to be on the safe side," the supervisor said.

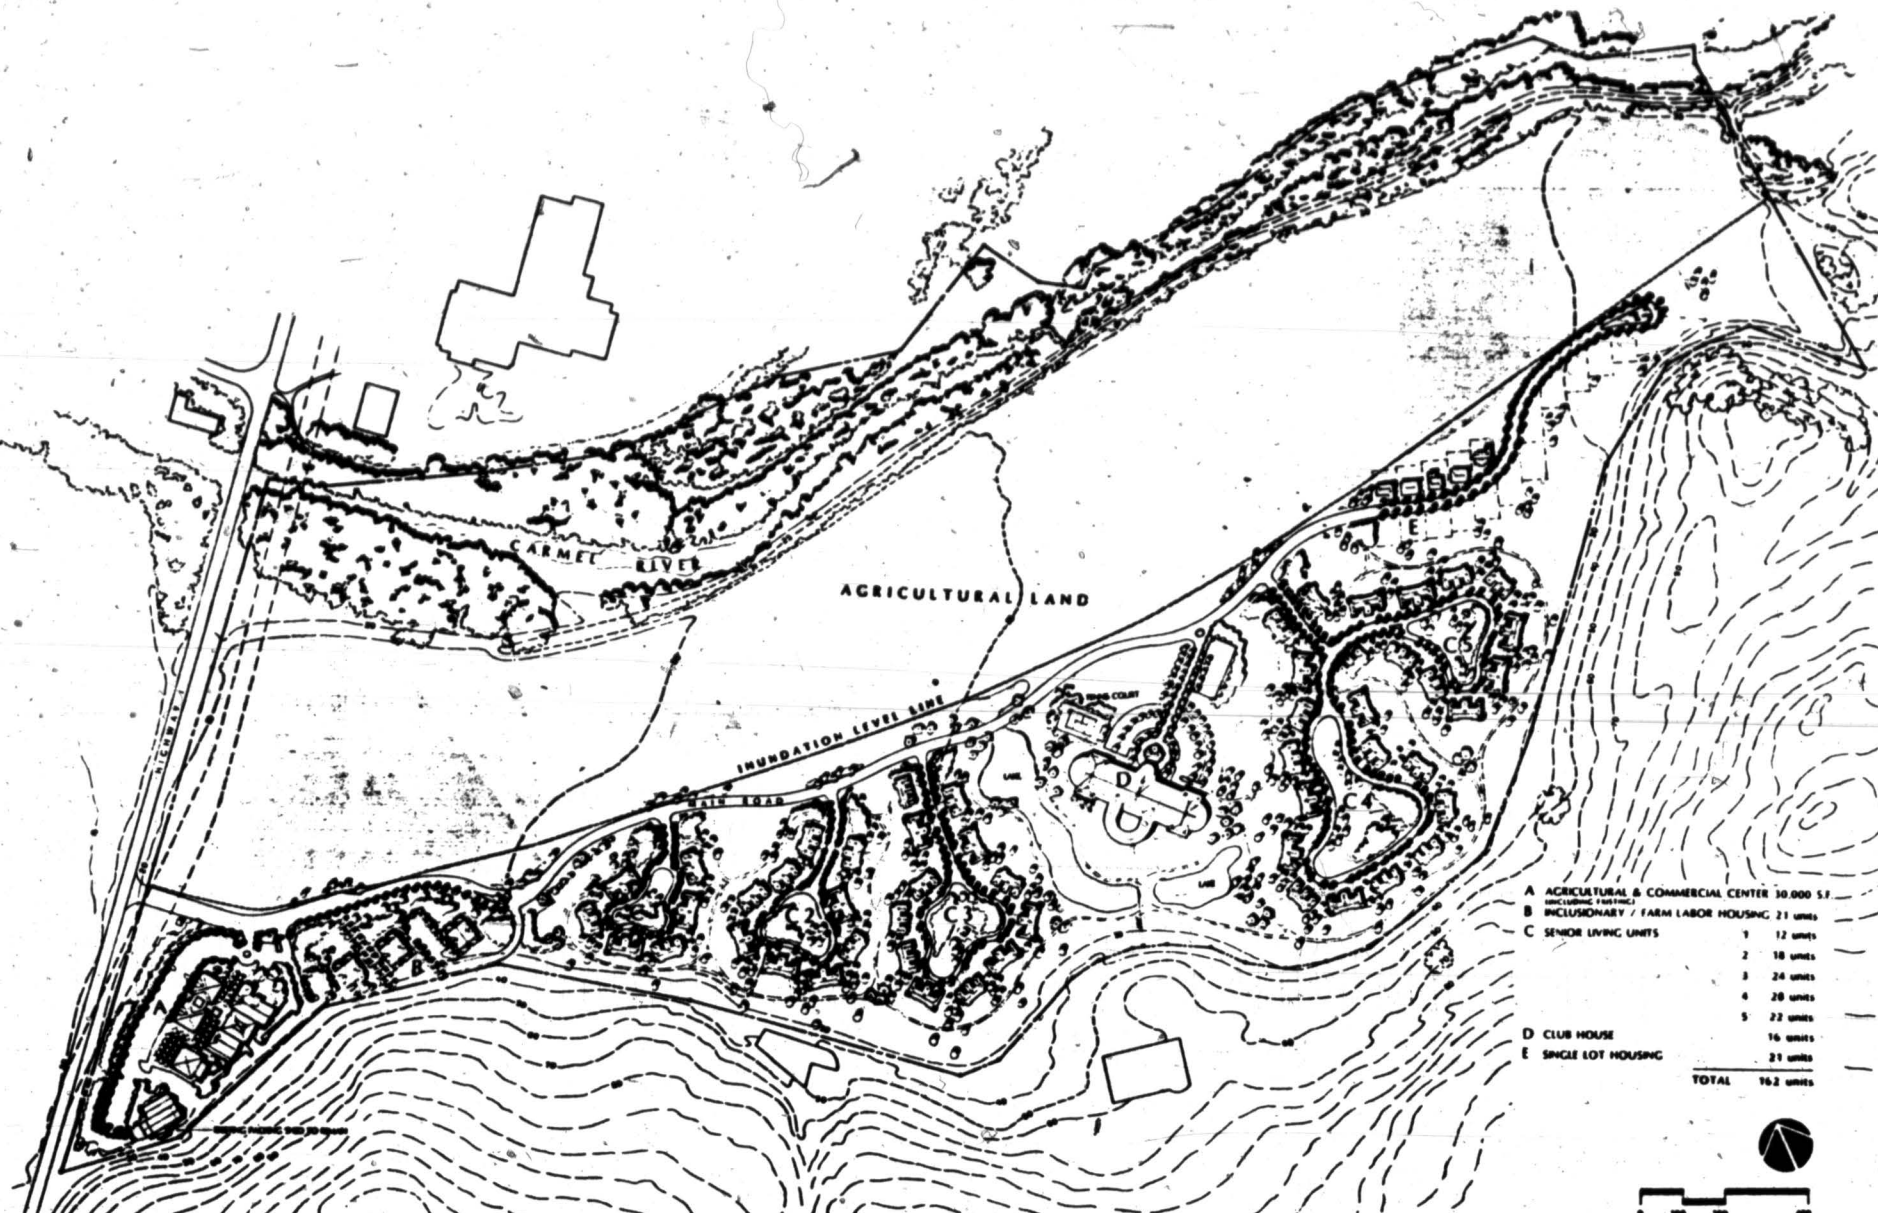

Under the edict of the master plan, if environmental concerns such as traffic and air pollution rise to too high a level, all building will stop until those problems are solved.

Citing as specific examples, Duffy pointed to the view from south bound Highway 1. Under the single-family dwelling plan, the rear fences of the lots would form a straight line against the southern edge of the artichoke field.

In addition to that, the units would be uniformly spaced, resulting in little visual variety.

Plus, with each lot in the single-family concept owned by a different person, houses would not be subject to as much scrutiny as with the Coast Ranch design.

All of units planned for the Coast Ranch are one story, with ample open space between the irregularly placed homes.

SITE PLAN

Coast Ranch

Carmel, California

UNDER AN agreement with the county, the Odellos will lower the levee on the north side of the artichoke fields by 1 foot to allow flood waters from the Carmel River to spill onto their property on the east side of Highway 1.

The Coast Ranch will also use less in public services, Duffy said.

In water alone, the savings should be substantial for the water district, Duffy said, with the typical family house accommodating five people, while senior houses generally find two people living under one roof.

Also, she added, the proposed project will use far less water than the current use, primarily irrigating artichoke fields, which uses about 318 acre feet annually. The Coast Ranch is projected to use 220 acre feet a year, a net reduction of 98 acre feet.

Duffy said traffic impacts on Highway 1 will also be reduced under the new plan. Studies show, she said, that single-family dwellings generate about 10 auto trips a day, while senior housing will total only three trips daily.

The plans also take into consideration the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway project, which would widen the existing road to relieve traffic.

With that in mind, Coast Ranch plans call for a 200-yard setback before any structures can be built on the land.

FOCUS (Friends Of Carmel Unified Schools) is a charitable, non-profit corporation whose purpose is to raise funds and to spend those funds for the benefit of the students of the Carmel Unified School District. FOCUS is an all-volunteer group of parents, teachers, and interested citizens.

Funds raised by FOCUS are applied directly to the classroom. Over the years expenditures by FOCUS have included everything from the purchase of computers and computer programs for all schools, to the acquisition of field guides for high school biology classes, to the purchase of tricycles for use by kindergarteners.

Sometime after the first week of November, most residents of the school district will be receiving a one-time State of California rebate. The minimum rebate will be $32.00; some persons will receive over $200.00.

FOCUS is asking you to SHARE this windfall with the students of the Carmel Unified School District. Each week we will publish the names of those persons who have chosen to SHARE. Please take a few moments to complete the attached pledge and return it to us. When your pledge is received, your name will be added to our honor roll.

When you SHARE your rebate with us, you can rest assured that all funds raised by FOCUS will be spent by FOCUS for the education of our children. Contributions to FOCUS are tax deductible for taxpayers who itemize.

Sincerely yours,

Sidney M. Morris

LATE LAST month the Carmel Beach Task Force reviewed plans for Phase II of the Carmel Beach Restoration Project. Here, task force consultant David Shonman (left to

Bid finally accepted for construction on walkway

By DAVID LELAND

THE LAST cobblestone fell into place this week for Phase II of the Carmel Beach Restoration Project when the Carmel City Council awarded a building contract to a Bay Area contractor.

The council approved bid (4-1, with Councilwoman Elinor Laiolo dissenting), before a quiet audience, with only one supporter of the long-controversial project there to view the proceedings.

"This really is a happy day for an awful lot of people in Carmel," said resident Lindsay Hannah, who has been a staunch supporter of the project that has sparked numerous surveys, town hall meetings and debate. "We're very proud of the council."

The lowest bid of the five applicants vying for the $750,000 job went to Burlingame-based Munkdale Bros., which bid the project at $665,248.

Included in the beach project will be a decomposed granite blufftop walkway beginning at Eighth Avenue to the city's southern limits, reconstruction of five new stairways, new handicapped curbside ramps, benches, and scenic overlooks along the walkway.

"The scope of work is geared for a landscaper like ourselves," said Munkdale Bros. estimator Ron Vilotti. "We feel it's a landscapers' job."

He added that there are no landscapers on the peninsula that have a large enough business to accomplish such a large task.

The other bidders — Granite Construction, Daniels and Shanklin, Monterey Peninsula Engineering, Daniels and House — are primarily into heavy construction.

Vilotti added that it is because his company is able to perform the majority of the work without subcontracting out, they were able bid so much lower on the walkway than the other contractors.

For example, on the walkway part of the job Munkdale bid $577,448, while the next lowest bidder, Granite Construction, came in at $687,130.

Conversely, on the road paving portion of the project, Granite Construction was able to underbid Munkdale by $47,000 to $80,300.

Munkdale will subcontract the paving work.

With 25 years in the landscaping business, Vilotti said Munkdale has performed many jobs similar to the beach project in Carmel.

He cited the Monterey Recreation Trail, a trail at Coyote Point in San Francisco and a current project underway in Eagle Park in Mountain View as examples of their work.

"I do hear their reputation is good," said Greg D'Ambrosio, director of administrative services for the city.

D'Ambrosio added that he was not surprised that the job came in under budget because the council has deleted some of the aspects of the original plan. He cited less parking places being lost, less sprinklers and more pathway as examples of changes.

D'AMBROSIO added that Munkdale has 45 days to mobilize for the job and another 150 days to complete the work once ground has been broken. He estimated that the job will be completed by summer.

A $200,000 Coastal Conservancy grant will be available for funds as soon as work has begun, D'Ambrosio said.

The council can either receive reimbursement on a piecemeal basis as each segment of the job is done or bill the conservancy when the job is done.

Laiolo, who voted against awarding the bid, said she was being faithful to the small group of people she has represented who are opposed to the walkway.

Supes reject suggestion to reduce citizen groups

By DAVID LELAND

THE MONTEREY County Board of Supervisors Tuesday refused to accept a recommendation from the Kenan Report that suggested severely limiting the part that citizens advisory groups play in the permit process.

The Kenan Report was commissioned last year by the board in an effort to "streamline" the county permit process.

And while many of the report's recommendations have been accepted by the board, such as consolidating the building and planning departments, this one was met with opposition.

"I think it's wonderful that people are willing to volunteer their services," said 4th District Supervisor Sam Karas, referring to the bi-monthly meetings of the groups.

Currently there are 17 citizens advisory groups within the county, with 11 groups in the Carmel area alone.

The principal task of the advisory groups is to review projects before they get to the Monterey County Planning Commission and compare them to the specific area plans which govern their neighborhoods.

The groups are composed of local residents who are familiar with the problems affecting their area.

"There's an old saying that says 'If something works, don't fix it,'" said Richard Criley, representing the Carmel Highlands Association, which disagreed with the recommendation of the Kenan Report. "The citizens' participation is the cornerstone of all of the (area) plans."

Under the recommendation from the Kenan Report, there would have been a maximum of eight advisory groups allowed countywide, which it said would allow the planning staff to work closer with the citizens.

But 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman said that, while it's true the groups need more staffing, the time they save the county merits that.

She cited as examples, cost saving, a lowered number of appeals, limited bad designs going before the planning commission and the valid distinction of each neighborhood.

She also questioned whether volunteers from varying neighborhoods should be asked to participate in groups outside their area — as was suggested in the Kenan Report.

"I don't think we can ask it of our volunteer citizens," she said. "And if we ask it we won't get a very good job out of them."

Load limit proposed for Burns Creek Bridge

CALTRANS WILL hold a public hearing in Big Sur Jan. 14 to discuss a proposal to establish and post load limits on the Burns Creek Bridge.

The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 14 at the Big Sur Grange Hall.

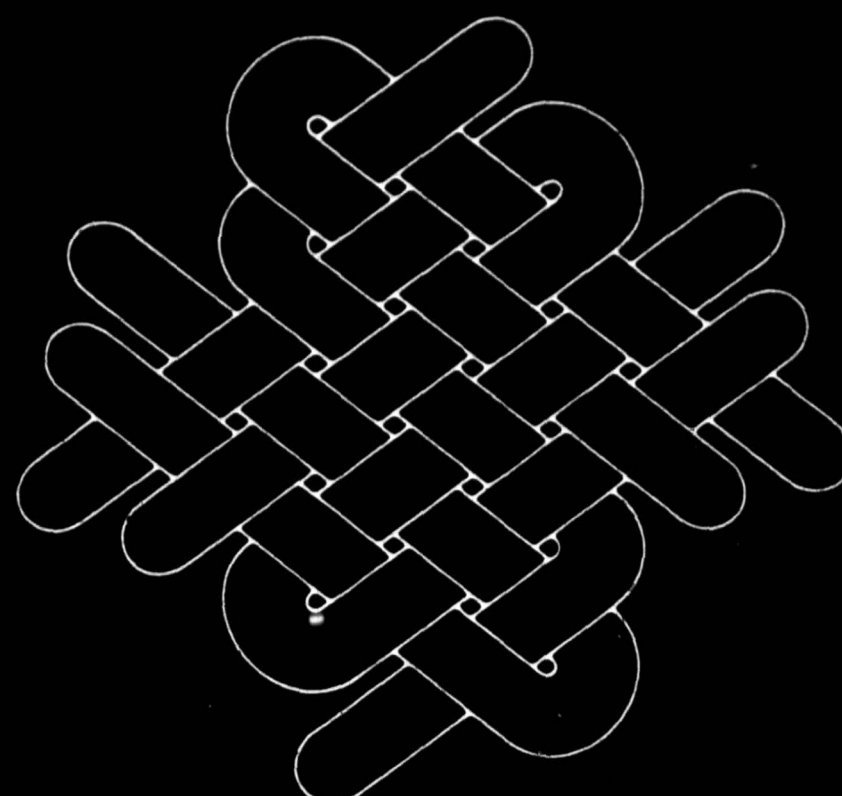

Burns Creek Bridge is located 11 miles south of the Big Sur Post Office on Highway 1.

Based on recent inspections, Caltrans has recommended the following load limits: 29 tons per semi-trailer combination and 30 tons per truck and full trailer.

Caltrans currently has the bridge programmed for either repair or replacement, however, the load limits are considered necessary until all remedial work is completed.

Water board at crossroads: EIR decision due

By NANCY HILLS

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Water Management District board has come to the proverbial fork in the road and must decide at its next meeting how it will complete the environmental impact report/statement process on the proposed New San Clemente Dam.

The water management board will discuss the issue at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Jan. 11 in Monterey City Council Chambers.

The Army Corps of Engineers, which is charged with issuing the federal permit on the project, has recommended that a supplemental or revised draft of the report be prepared. The district was informed of the decision by a letter it received from the corps on Jan. 5.

"Given the concerns and objections raised by responsible agencies, groups, and individuals in the draft EIR/EIS comments, our preferred course of action is to continue the joint EIR/EIS process with the preparation of a supplement to the (i.e. revised) Draft EIR/EIS on the New San Clemente Dam," the letter reads.

A revised draft could add an estimated nine to 11 months to the permitting process, but even that estimate is subject to change depending on how much work the district has to do on the report. The time could be more or less.

If the board decides to go ahead and try to complete a final draft of the document without going through a revised draft, and the final is still not acceptable to the various agencies, it risks having to do a supplemental final which would take even longer. To do a supplemental final, the entire process must be repeated; only a portion has to be done for a revised draft.

Last year, the district released its draft environmental report/statement on the proposed project. The report, which functions both as the federal environmental statement and state environmental report, was severely criticized by both federal and state environmental agencies for not sufficiently investigating alternatives to a dam on the main stem of Carmel River.

District voters last November, with an almost 2 to 1 margin, directed the district to pursue a dam on the Carmel River as a water supply project. The dam was to be completed by 1993, but that date will probably have to be changed depending on how long it takes to complete the environmental review.

The Environmental Protection Agency also recommended in its comments that the district do a revised draft.

Though the Army Corps of Engineers issues the federal permit, if the EPA determines that the proposed dam is not the best project in terms of the environment, it can usurp the Army's authority.

The district is forming a task force to work with agencies that have the strongest objections to the document. The task force will meet with Rep. Leon Panetta on Thursday, Jan. 7.

"The purpose of the task force would be to iron out and hopefully resolve concerns about alternatives, fishery issues and mitigation plans among others," a draft staff report of the board states.

A revised draft must go through a comment period of 34 days, which the district must respond to in its final version. If the comments received on the revised version are able to be answered in a final document, the district can proceed to prepare a final EIR/EIS. That too must go through a comment period (once released) of 39 days and those comments must be answered.

If the final version requires only minor changes, the district can proceed to certification of the document. A certified EIR is necessary for the State Water Resources Control Board to make its determination on the project. A hearing on the project before that board is scheduled for January 1989. A draft report is acceptable for the hearing.

The hearing was rescheduled from April of this year after the district determined that it could not answer the comments made on the EIR in time for the meeting.

The work involved in the federal process is the same until the last portion of the schedule, when the Army Corps of Engineers rules on issuing a federal permit.

Knowledge of CPR could save lives

MORE THAN 70 percent of all CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) rescues occur in the home on an individual known by the rescuer.

Statistics show that more than 650,000 people in the United States died from heart attacks in 1986 and that heart disease is the leading cause of death in Monterey County.

On the other hand CPR saves more than 250 lives a day; the more people that know CPR, the more lives that can be saved.

With that in mind the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross offers CPR classes twice a month all year. The following classes are offered:

- 6 to 10 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, Jan. 12 and 14.
- 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 6.

Classes are held at the Carmel Red Cross house at Eighth and Dolores. Classes include demonstrations and teaching of the Heimlich maneuver. Cost is $15 for the eight-hour class. A certificate will be presented upon completion.

For more information call the Red Cross at 624-6921.

Your attitude in '88

WHO COULD have failed to notice the recent rains? All over the peninsula roadways were awash.

And who among us wasn't shivering a bit more than usual when the winds blew their bone-chilling blasts throughout Christmas week?

Lo and behold, not only have we noticed these winter phenomena, but so have the nightly news mavens. There on TV was a picture of a reservoir. It was filling up with winter water. So said the pretty woman who was in charge of the commentary.

Ms. Telecaster's words about the reservoir reminded us of the old saw about the glass of water. Depending on your point of view—the key word these days is "attitude"—you perceive the glass as half-full or half-empty.

Of course, if you think the glass is half-full, you attitude is positive. You're an optimist.

If, on the other hand, you always think of the glass as half-empty... well, that's too unspeakable. We won't comment on that attitude.

But the TV image and commentary were of a positive nature. The reservoir was on its way to being full. There were no immediate threats of a drought.

Remember the drought?

How many droughts have there been in our lifetimes here in California?

Just one, you'll remember, though it did last for two years.

What that means, folks, is just this: every other year but the two drought years the reservoir is always seen as filling up. Some years more, some years less.

If some of you out there are 70 years old, you've seen two years of drought and 68 years of sufficient winter rain.

And if you were a betting man, would you bet for or against a drought this year or next?

These thoughts about the weather are based on observation and a bit of historical perspective. Please note: these ideas are based on facts, not what we feel may happen next. No one knows what will happen next. All we know is the trend, the parade of facts till now.

All of which leads us back to our professional bailiwick, the financial markets. Are they currently half-full (going up) or half-empty (going down)?

The trend, that parade of facts that provides the only rational point of reference in an often irrational world, shows that the stock market has risen 150% since the autumn of 1982. That's right, even with the results of the current crash, the market today stands one and a half times higher than it did when the Great Bull Market began.

Keep in mind that the market went nowhere for the previous decade and a half. That was a negative trend. This one is positive.

The bond market (interest rates) has been positive for approximately the same period. Prior to 1982 we saw a trend where people expected and accepted a gradual rise in interest rates. And that's what they got.

You can't alter these facts any more than you can control the weather.

You control one thing only. And that's your attitude toward the facts. If you don't like the markets now, you may be forcing the facts to march in a direction they just won't go.

Happy New Year.

CONCRETING OF OCEAN AVENUE TO BE COMPLETED FEBRUARY 10

Pouring of concrete is in full sway on Ocean Avenue, and the work will now go forward to completion without interruption. It is probable that the entire job will be finished about February 10th.

It will be necessary, in order to have a first-class completed job, for motorists and others to pay strict attention to the traffic rules imposed by the "Street Closed" barriers. The contractor "owns" the street until the work is completed, and may cause arrests for violation of the rules.

In order to accommodate travel on San Carlos highway, Contractor Syd Ruthven has made plans to leave the concrete laying on that intersection until the last. He is not obliged to do this according to specifications.

WELFARE LOAD IN COUNTY INCREASED

The welfare case load of Monterey County increased 25.5 per cent between January and October of 1937, going from a total of 974 persons in January to 1222 in October, according to a study of the relief burden of California counties made public by California Taxpayers' Association. The welfare case load of the county includes those persons receiving aid to the needy aged, the blind, orphans, and the "unemployable" indigents. The number of persons receiving aid to the needy aged increased from 414 to 582 in October; the blind case load went from 15 in January to 22 in October; orphans totalled 224 in January and 327 in October; while the indigent case load went from 321 in January to 291 in October.

The increase in the welfare case load of the county is sharply reflected in the budget allowances of the county for welfare, which totalled $504,104 for the year 1937-38, as compared with welfare expenditures by the county for 1936-37 of $285,016, the association pointed out.

LAUNCHING CEREMONIES SUNDAY FOR CARMEL JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL

The launching of a ship and the dedication of an educational institution are not similar. A ship is never under way until it is launched, but a school is seldom launched, until it has been under way for some time.

True to this convention, the Carmel Junior High School, in operation since summer vacation, will be formally dedicated on Sunday, at 2 p.m.

While it is not on the program for anybody or anything to be launched with champagne, the traditional tribute of speeches, music, presentation of colors and tours of inspection are scheduled in observance of the occasion.

It is a school of the future, both in orientation and use. For according to plans, it will one day be a senior high school, and the present plant, at Ocean Avenue and Highway One, will become one of two junior high schools, the other being eventually situated up the valley.

COUNCIL DROPS CONTROVERSIAL PARKING SCHEME

The Carmel City Council bounced back to the Planning Commission Tuesday on a controversial proposed ordinance that would toughen parking requirements for new restaurants.

The matter has been batted around by the two legislative bodies since November. The proposed law, which would require a restaurant to provide one parking space for each four seats, was up for its second and final reading Tuesday.

The City Council voted 4-0 to approve the first part of the two-part ordinance. Part one established guidelines new restaurants must follow prior to obtaining a use permit.

The regulations specify new restaurants must provide rest rooms for both sexes. The guidelines also forbid "formula" good restaurants, such as Denny's or Sambo's, and spell out restrictions on the sale of alcoholic beverages.

But the portion of the ordinance that would beef up the parking requirements for new restaurants was returned to the Planning Commission.

RIVER EROSION EFFORTS TOP 1983 AGENDA

OF CARMEL RIVER WATCH

Serious erosion of the Carmel River banks occurred again last year and continues this winter.

Last winter's erosion was in January and April, when the river swept away an access road, barn, and much valuable land, especially in the Schulte Road bridge area. During this year's pre-Christmas storm, erosion hit hardest in the Boronda Road bridge area.

The overflow of water from the lagoon that damaged several homes in Mission Fields in November was related to the previous upstream erosion.

Margye Neswitz • 625-5322

A rose by any other name

PERHAPS YOU have had the same experience I have. That is, to look for your mail and find names that are not yours on letters, cards and those never-ending flow of catalogs that we all receive. Maybe you don't have this problem if your name is Mary Jones, or Bill English, or Rose Bell. However, most of us receive missives with exotic names that make full use of creative, if not poetic, spellings.

With names such as my two, misspelling seems to be a built-in factor. As for my given name, I receive much mail to the traditional spelling Marjorie, Margery, or Margie, but some correspondent become more inventive using Marjye, Margje, Mageree, or even Maggi (or was it Maggie?). In pronunciation, some call me Margay, or Marjean (or is it Margene or Margine?) which has a nice ring to it but it is hard to say Neswitz after Marjean or Mar-Jean (even though hyphenated names are "in" right now).

As far as the simple two-syllable family name (a gift from my husband), a few variants that I can recall at the moment are Neswits, Neswitty, Newswitsy, Neswipz, Nesurtz, Neswith, Nesowitz or Mesowitz, Mesowits and Meswitz. Ns have a tendency to sound like Ms, seems to be the explanation here — or is it the fact that they are next to each other on the typewriter and word processor keyboards?

There was one name spelling recently that struck me as a little more intriguing and I thought for a moment that someone was being delightfully creative by incorporating my profession and my last name by spelling it NEWSBIT. That is my favorite from the myriad misspellings encountered during mail call twice a day.

Another peculiarity connected with name spelling is a question that I frequently am asked, "Can you spell your name?" I often feel the urge to reply, "No, I tried and tried but I never could get the hang of it." Usually I just say, "Certainly, it is

N as in Naragansett
E as in Estonia
S as in Saskatchewan
W as in Waxahachie
I as in Irrawaddy
T as in Transylvania, and
Z as in Zambezi."

Even after my patient spelling, the N may end up M and who knows what the other letters will be following the N or the M.

THERE ARE are a few lucky people with one-name recognition. People like Elvis and Ike. (All right, so it's a nickname. It's a name nonetheless and nicknames are so adhesive they usually supplant the real ones.) We have a few on the local level that come to mind; Lequita, Hildegard, Todd, Artie, Finis, Clint and Lancelot. It must be reassuring to need only one moniker to be known in the world around us. Or, in Clint's case, to be known all over the world.

That spark ignited another idea. It would be simpler and certainly save a lot of time when filling out applications, signing checks, etc., if we each had only one name to write. And those who are worried about the population explosion might find the birth rate going drastically down if prospective parents were required to find a unique name before proceeding to have a child. There would be a lot of couples who just wouldn't have the patience to work out a name that is not already taken by one of the billions of people who share this planet. (This is global thinking.) We would very shortly have millions of GOWOs (Growing Old Without Offspring). The whole process might become more than a little tedious.

RECENTLY, I met someone whose given name appeared to be taken from the first syllable of the surname. That rang a bell! I realized that I knew a few other people that fit into that category. Gov. "Duke" Deukmejian and locally Mac McDonald to mention only two.

Another thought came rushing in — if this works for them, why not for everybody? Wouldn't life be simpler? Such a name system certainly would help everyone migrating to California from the Midwest and the Eastern part of the United States. These people (accustomed to "last name memory"), find the laid-back California custom of instant familiarity of first-name-use-only, demands a new memory game.

After all, life could use some un-complicating. Ab Abbott, Greg Gregory (that has a ring to it), Al Alexander, Jack Jackson, Glad Gladney (a happy sound) would be so much simpler. Right?

History lessons would be much easier for everyone to learn... Wash Washington, Lin Lincoln, Wil Wilson, Tru Truman, with our current White House residents call Rea Reagan and Mrs. Rea Reagan.

On the local political scene we would have mayors Mac McClair, Fish Fisher, East Eastwood, Al Albert, and Cris Crispo (Mayor of Cannery Row). The first three aren't married but the last two would require a Mrs. for Mrs. Al Albert and Mrs. Cris Crispo.

This might present a problem. Would women like this? Of course, many ladies who have married within the past 12 to 15 years retained original names and/or added a hyphen plus another surname. In one case another surname was added, but the hyphen dropped (Karin Strasser Kauffman). Let me see, we would have Dr. Kauff Kauffman. His wife would be Mrs. Kauff Strasser-Kauffman, or would she be Mrs. Strass Strasser Kauffman or Mrs. Strass Kauff Kauffman?

A few more questions began popping holes in the brand-new name-simplification theory. Children without first names would add to the confusion and we certainly wouldn't want to start with numbers — Coop Cooper number one, Coop Cooper number two, and so forth. Computers have diminished our individuality enough.

And, what about telephone listings and monosyllabic names? Column after column of Smith Smiths, Jones Jones and Brown Browns, etc. While Smith may not be the more exciting sounding name around, I do believe I prefer John Smith to Smith Smith especially with a sprinkling of middle initials to perk them up, Q, K, J, or even Z.

What would this do to a casual conversation? It might stretch out interminably if you mention Mrs. Brown Brown. The reply could well be, "Is that the Mrs. Brown Brown I know?"

"I don't know, which one is that?"

"The one with blue eyes and blond hair."

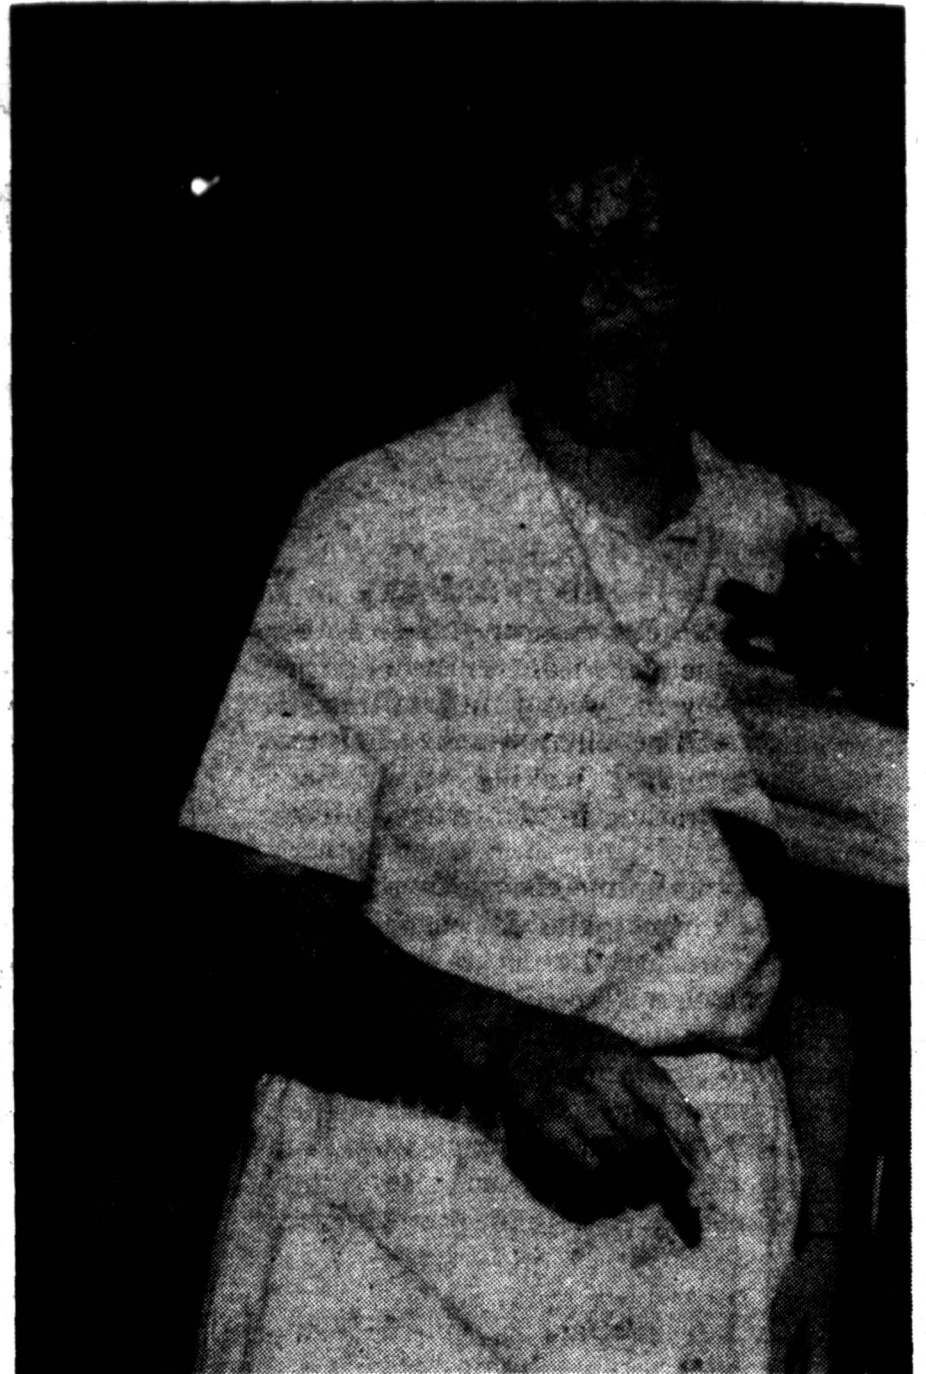

"No. This Mrs. Brown Brown has brown eyes and red hair."

"Oh, I know her, too. Is she about 45 years old?"

"No, she may look 45, but she is nearer 60."

"Well, she looks 45 to me."

"Wait a minute, are you talking about the Mrs. Brown Brown with brown eyes and red hair who lives in Carmel Valley?"

DURK DUERKSEN, production manager of ColorGraphics in Pacific Grove and former Pine Cone production manager.

"No, this one lives in Pacific Grove."

Whether the difference in appearance is due to the "health-and-fitness craze," to a lucky stack of genes, or to the skillful slicing of a surgeon's knife, it became clear that descriptions and ages are not adequate. There are any number of blond/blue eyed Brown Browns and Jones Jones in a variety of ages.

ALTHOUGH SOME names would sound romantic — Kiss Kissler or Pat Patton, Old Oldfield might not please the Oldfield family, especially the younger ones.

There seemed to be several drawbacks, if not downright complications, to this new idea. Some names might sound too religious: God Godwin, Lord Lord, Pope Pope (not too bad as it still leaves The Pope as an exclusive), and others could be interpreted as commands — Pay Payton, Rob Robertson, Nick Nickerson or Kill Killens.

Other names might give a false description: Sad Sadler might be very cheerful; Young Youngblood might be planning a 97th birthday party; Rich Richards may be struggling to make it through the week. Furthermore, we wouldn't want to sound like a state of stutterers.

Looking back, perhaps Gone With The Wind wouldn't have been as successful starring Gable and Leigh Leigh; and Sir Lawrence is certainly classier than Ol Olivier. Historically, Wash Washington sounds a little squeaky clean for the lusty days of the American Revolution; "Honest Abe" has a nicer ring than Honest Linc; and Harry sounds much clipper than "Give 'em Hell Tru." There are a couple that would have been all right — Cart Carter and Nix Nixon.

Still, there is a partiality to alliteration in names, so, let's hang onto and cherish those that do work out. We need the exceptions to the rule to jazz up the other dull, drab names encountered so frequently.

Hats off to Ad Addleman, Mac McDonald and Duke Deukmejian!

Point Sur tours combine history, whale watching

By RUSS BAGGERLY

WALKING TOURS of the Point Sur Lightstation State Historic Park just north of Big Sur, now have an added attraction.

During the months of January and February, volunteers from the Monterey Bay Chapter of the American Cetacean Society will accompany the weekly Sunday morning tours. They will be telling visitors about gray whales, which are making their annual southerly migration in the waters off the point.

Cetacean society member Alan Baldrige, librarian at the Hopkins Marine Station in Pacific Grove, said the point is, "a great place from which to see the whales."

"This is one of the first times that the lightstation has been open to the public," he said.

According to Baldrige, park service officials contacted the society, asking for members to volunteer to share their knowledge of the whale's habits with visitors to the point.

Park ranger Steffani R. Jarrett, coordinator of the tour program, said it was hoped that a spotting scope can be provided for tour members to watch whales.

But whale watching is only a part of the tour of the lightstation. In May of 1986, Point Sur docents began leading tours of the station. Docents were given 40 hours of instruction about the history of the point, lightstation service and information about navigation, which they impart to visitors during the 2 to 2 1/2-hour tour.

"The lightstation was deeded to the park service in 1984," Jarrett said. But, because of the condition of the property — no fences, holes in the road, etc. — it took until the following year, in August, before the first tours were open to the public.

"Starting in August we gave two tours a week, for two months. That went over pretty well," she said. Docents took over the tours the following year.

Part of the lightstation's history includes some of the ships that have sunk off the coast.

Chief Ranger Jim Peat Listed some of the wrecks. "In 1875," he said, "a ship called the Ventura went down. That wreck helped to prompt construction of the lightstation."

Other wrecks that have occurred along the coastline have been the loss of the Los Angeles in 1894, the Shna-yak in 1916, and even the crash of the dirigible Macon, which lightstation personnel witnessed falling into the sea.

Jarrett said the station had been manned up until the '60s, when it was automated by the Coast Guard light service. Before that there had been four personnel working at the lightstation, to man the light 24 hours a day. In 1975 the last person stationed there left.

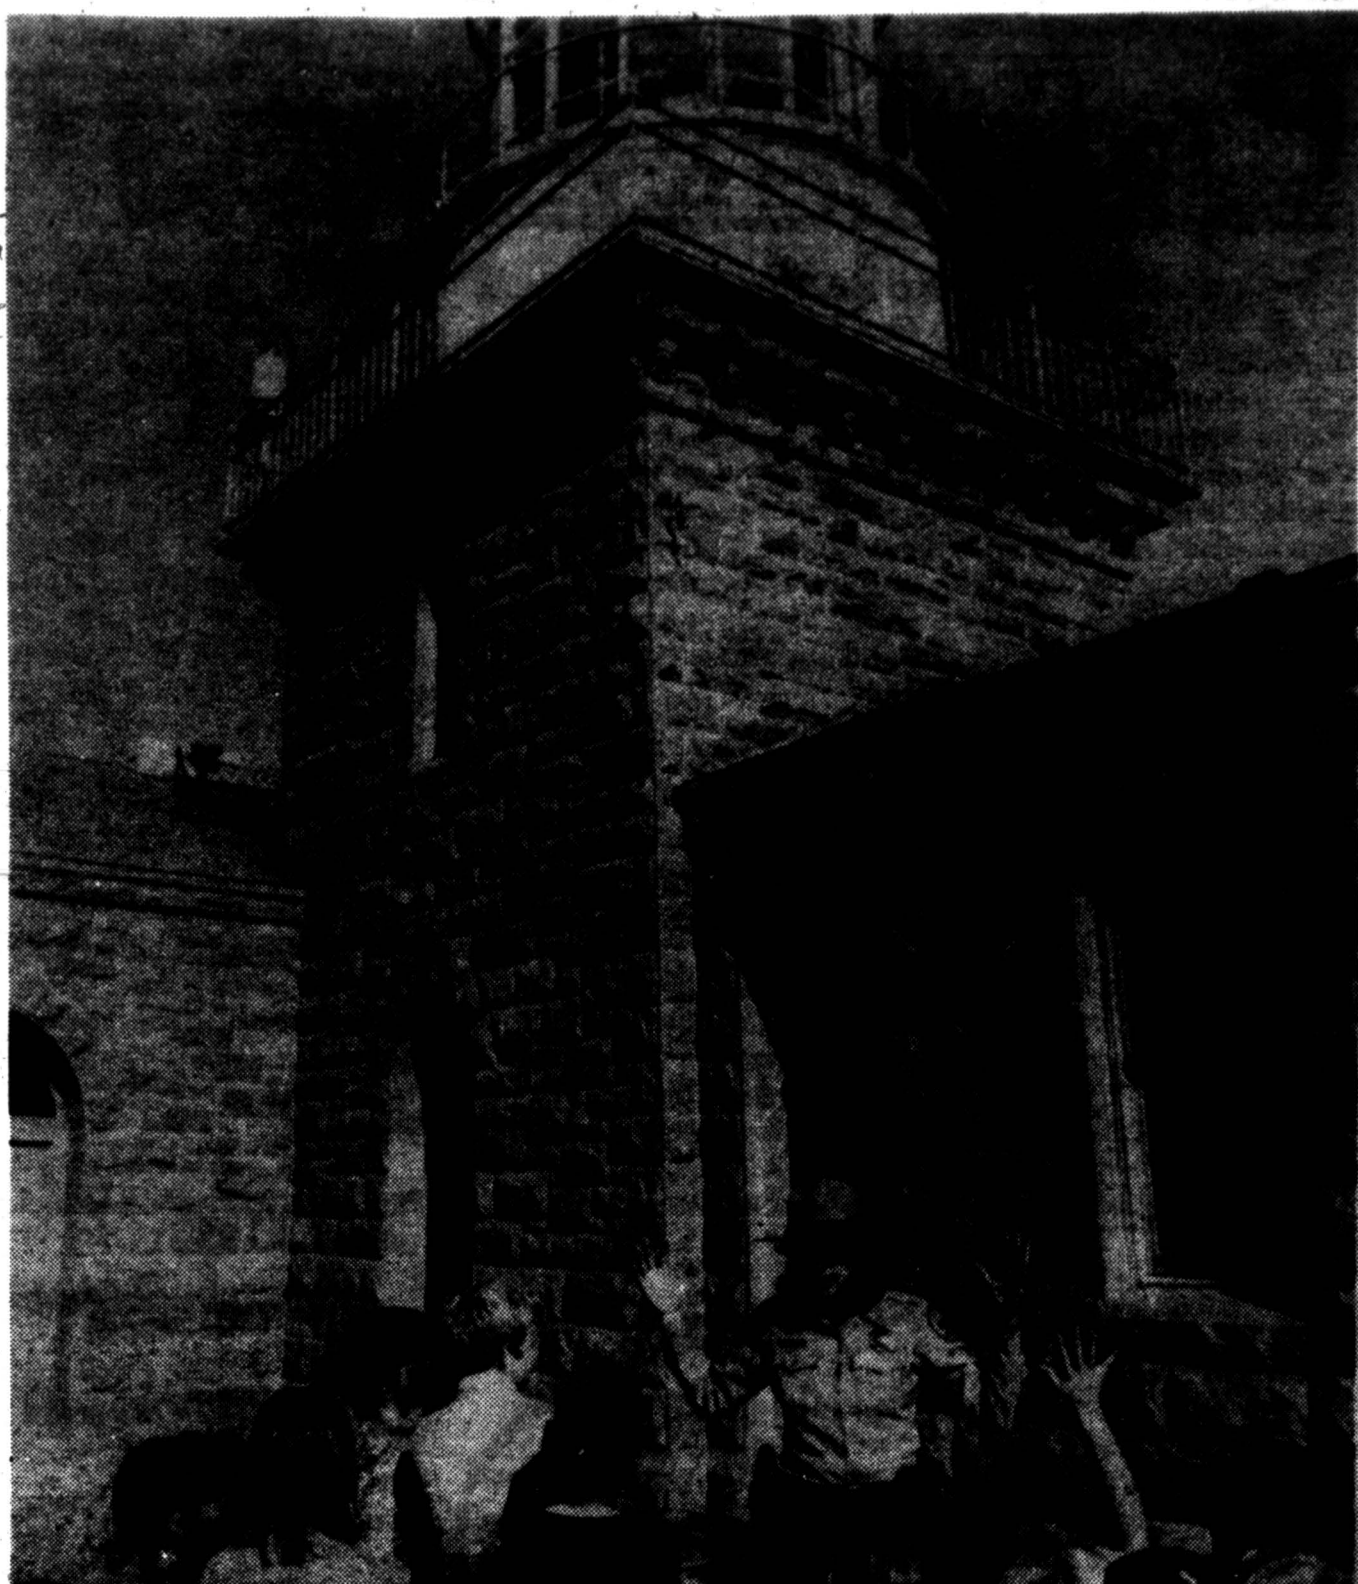

The park service has established a free telephone number for people interested in taking the tour to call for information. The number is 625-4419, and can be called anytime.

Jarrett said that while reservations are not required, she recommended that anyone wanting to take the tour arrive at the gate of the Point Sur Naval Facility by at least 9:30 a.m. The tour begins promptly at 10 a.m.

The tours are limited to the first 40 people and 15 automobiles to arrive. Due to the undeveloped facilities, no food or drink may be brought on the tour, and there is no smoking allowed.

Because of limited space, motorhomes and vehicles with trailers are not allowed either.

Park service officials recommend that comfortable shoes be worn, because of the quarter-mile walk up a 300-foot incline to get to the lightstation. Also, they recommend that blustery winter weather be taken into account, and to dress accordingly. Information about possible cancellations of tours is included on the taped message the morning of the tour.

STATE PARK ranger Steffani Jarrett describes some of the features of the Point Sur Lightstation to a group of visiting

There is a $3 charge per vehicle, and everyone must accompany the tour. Members of a party cannot remain in their cars during the tour, and park service officials recommend dropping off anyone not wishing to join the tour at the picnic grounds of Andrew Molera State Park, three miles south of the point.

Also, tour officials have found that there is little on the tour that is of interest to small children.

BELLON-FISHER NAMED EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF MONTEREY COUNTY CULTURAL COUNCIL

Roderick L. Dewar, president of the Monterey County Cultural Council, announced the appointment of Linda Bellon-Fisher as the organization's new executive director.

Commencing Dec. 28, Bellon-Fisher began administration of MCCC programs, including the regranting program for arts organizations and the pilot artists-in-the-schools program. As the state-designated partner of the California Arts Council's State Local Partnership Program, MCCC provides support and technical services to cultural organizations throughout Monterey County.

Prior to this appointment, Bellon-Fisher was the program administrator at The Friends of Photography in Carmel. In that position, she served as administrator of The Friends' grants and awards program for creative photographers and as managing editor of re:view. She also organized some of The Friends' exhibitions, including the recent Narrative Images show.

Before moving to Monterey County to begin her career in arts administration at The Friends, Bellon-Fisher was actively involved in the arts in the greater Los Angeles area. There she served as a board member of several nonprofit arts organizations and taught at California State Polytechnic University, Pomona; Mount San Antonio College and Coastline Community College. Additionally, she exhibited her own artwork nationally and was a contributing editor for Artweek. She has written more than 50 reviews, articles and interviews for various arts publications and holds a bachelor's and master's degree in art from California State University, Fullerton.

"We're very pleased to have found a director, with such a strong arts background, who is already part of the cultural community in Monterey County," said Dewar. "Although Linda's experience in the arts is broad, her main interest is in the concerns of this community."

Bellon-Fisher follows Consuelo Underwood, who resigned as executive director of MCCC on Nov. 19 to become the Public Art Coordinator for the Sacramento Metropolitan Arts Commission. "One of our main objectives in choosing a new director was to assure continuity in the cultural council's present programs and future objectives. We felt that Linda Bellon-Fisher was the best candidate to provide that continuity, and she, Consuelo Underwood and I have worked together to facilitate that objective," said Dewar.

For further information, contact the council at 424-3043.

HOW TO LIVE WITH A GOLFAHOLIC

By Carmel Author Mark Oman

WARNING!

The following excerpt from the new book HOW TO LIVE WITH A GOLFAHOLIC is intended solely for the private use of those who suspect they may be friends of, related to, or — heaven forbid — married to a golfaholic. In the weeks ahead you'll learn the whole sordid story; how to survive the "traps and hazards" of life with a golf lover.

What to do about weekends

LET'S BE real honest. At least one day of the weekend is going to be totally shot. Probably both days.

A typical scenario usually goes something like this:

Up at 2:30 a.m., dressed and out to the course where he waits in line with other addicts to secure an appointment for next weekend's fix. Then back to the car where he grabs some shut-eye until his 6:30 a.m. starting time. Then 18 frustrating holes with his regular foursome of hard-core sand-baggers.

Then lunch, Polish dogs, beer, and a couple of candy bars for energy to get through the card game in the lounge. Then lose a few more dollars on the putting green to a 12-year-old hustler.

Then into the 19th hole to watch the pros on television and give advice as to what's wrong with Nicklaus' short game. Then out to the practice tee so he won't forget what it feels like to hit one out of 50 balls on the clubface.

He arrives home in no mood for your smiling face and the romantic evening you've planned.

Hell, how can he feel romantic when his first love, his pitching wedge, has left him cold!

Of course there are a hundred variations on this weekend scenario, but in every case, no matter how the details may vary, the results are always the same:

A frustrated, grumpy, heart-broken blob of protoplasm comes dragging in the door mumbling incoherently, and somehow you have got to get him showered and dressed like a real person and functioning enough to be your escort for the opera or ballet, or worse, an evening alone together.

Then there are those rare occasions when the golfing gods have looked kindly upon his mighty labors, and he will arrive home in such a state of euphoria and self satisfaction that you and everyone you come into contact with that night will be subjected to a slow and agonizing replay of every shot on every hole, not to mention every nuance of his mental and physical mastery over the game.

So what do you do about weekends and plans you've made for the evening?

About the best you can hope for is to see a wretched blob come blubbing in the door. By now you know how to handle that.

The only thing you really have to worry about is when a great laughing, singing, all's-right-with-the-world bouncing bubble returns from battle and scares the hell out of you!

You don't know this person. He reminds you of someone you once knew...before you got married. Before golf!

You're in the Twilight Zone...

A New Year's thought

IN SEPTEMBER of 1987, Daniel, a freshman at CHS, was killed in a motorcycle accident. In December of 1987 a graduate of Pacific Grove High, known to his friends as Aggie, was killed in a car accident. Also in December, Tina, a Monterey High Senior, was killed in a motorcycle accident.

Unlikely and terribly unfortunate coincidence? Coincidence, yes, but not unlikely. The numbers of teens killed in motor vehicle-related accidents have reached epidemic proportions. There are many different ways to look at this horrible problem. You can attack teens for their irresponsibility. You can become over-paranoid. You can even turn the other way and pretend it's just one of those things. And it's really easy to take on one of those views and go on with one's life without doing anything because you "can't do anything about it."

There isn't a simple answer, so no one seems to be looking. But I can't just take on one of those attitudes. It hits much too close to home for that. My friends are dying.

When the news hit each of the schools, they virtually shut down. The hallways were filled with people wandering aimlessly, most of them crying. No one could go to class. No one could believe it. Nothing made any sense. Life came to a grinding halt. The counselors scurried around trying to pick up the pieces. But no matter how hard we all tried, those pieces couldn't be glued back into the same pattern.

Things could never be quite the same again. Because we'd all thought we were invincible. We were young and nothing could touch us. This is an emotional and confusing age anyway and many of us had never experienced a real death close to us before. We looked around at our friends and wondered who was next. It was so sad and so lonely and so utterly frightening.

When you look at how these three teens affected our whole peninsula and then think about themillions of teens killed across the nation each year, you've got to start asking yourself questions. Why are these kids going so fast? And what about the number of suicides? What's happening to our youth? Why are their lives so empty that they live for thrills or decide that they simply don't have anything to live for? Is it the way they are raised? Or the society they live in? Can you really write it off, saying "kids will be kids"? Can you really decide that there is nothing you can do and leave it at that? Why aren't teens doing anything to help themselves? What can they do?

Please think about it. I don't want to die. And I don't want anyone else's son or daughter or best friend to die. The cold hard reality we've learned is that no one is exempt.

In loving memory of Daniel, Aggie, and Tina and to their families: your loss was not in vain.

INSTEAD OF SHOPPING FOR A CAR THAT'S PRICED TO MOVE, CONSIDER ONE THAT'S BUILT TO STAY.

Shopping for a car by price alone is fine — if all you're concerned about is not spending a lot of money.

But if you're interested in getting a lot for your money, consider a Volvo.

Volvos are built to last. How long, we can't guarantee. But we do know that it isn't uncommon to see Volvos driving around with hundreds of thousands of miles on them. At least one, still in good health, has close to one million miles on it.

You couldn't ask for a better long term investment than that.

So before you invest in a new car, ask yourself this: Are you interested in a car that goes for less money? Or a car that goes for more years?

Carmel Valley family hits it big in Lotto

By RUSS BAGGERLY

THE NEW year started off with a bang for a Carmel Valley family who won big in the California Lottery.

Brian and Pam Heneks heard that they had won Saturday night, but did not know how much the winnings would be until the next day.

Pam Heneks purchased a Lotto Quick Pick ticket at the Carmel Valley Market, which carried five correct numbers plus the bonus number. The prize for getting those numbers was $337,093, but after taxes that ticket will yield them about $270,000 in winnings.

The family resides on a Carmel Valley cattle ranch, where Brian is the foreman. Pam Heneks manages the custodial staff, which maintains the main house and guest houses on the property.

Of the Heneks five children, Lucas, age 10, Harrison, 5, Reed, 3, and the twins, Andrew and Grace, 1, only Lucas seemed to have an understanding of what the money means to the family.

"I want to be a baseball player," Lucas said, "and I want to go to college."

Lucas' parents plan to save most of the money, with college educations for the children in mind. "We'll use some of (the money) to pay off our truck, but we're going to put it where it'll do us the most good," Brian said.

He added that they would probably be looking for an accountant to help them invest the winnings.

"Right now it's a little more real," Pam said, "and when we have the money in our hands it'll get more so."

On Tuesday Brian Heneks took the family with him for the drive to San Jose, where the California Lottery has its regional office for this area.

"At first the woman at the counter didn't seem very interested in us. She said they would mail us a check in a few days," he said. "Then she took a look at the amount we had won, and said maybe she had better call the manager."

"Anyway, they won't be putting this check in any mailbox," Brian said.

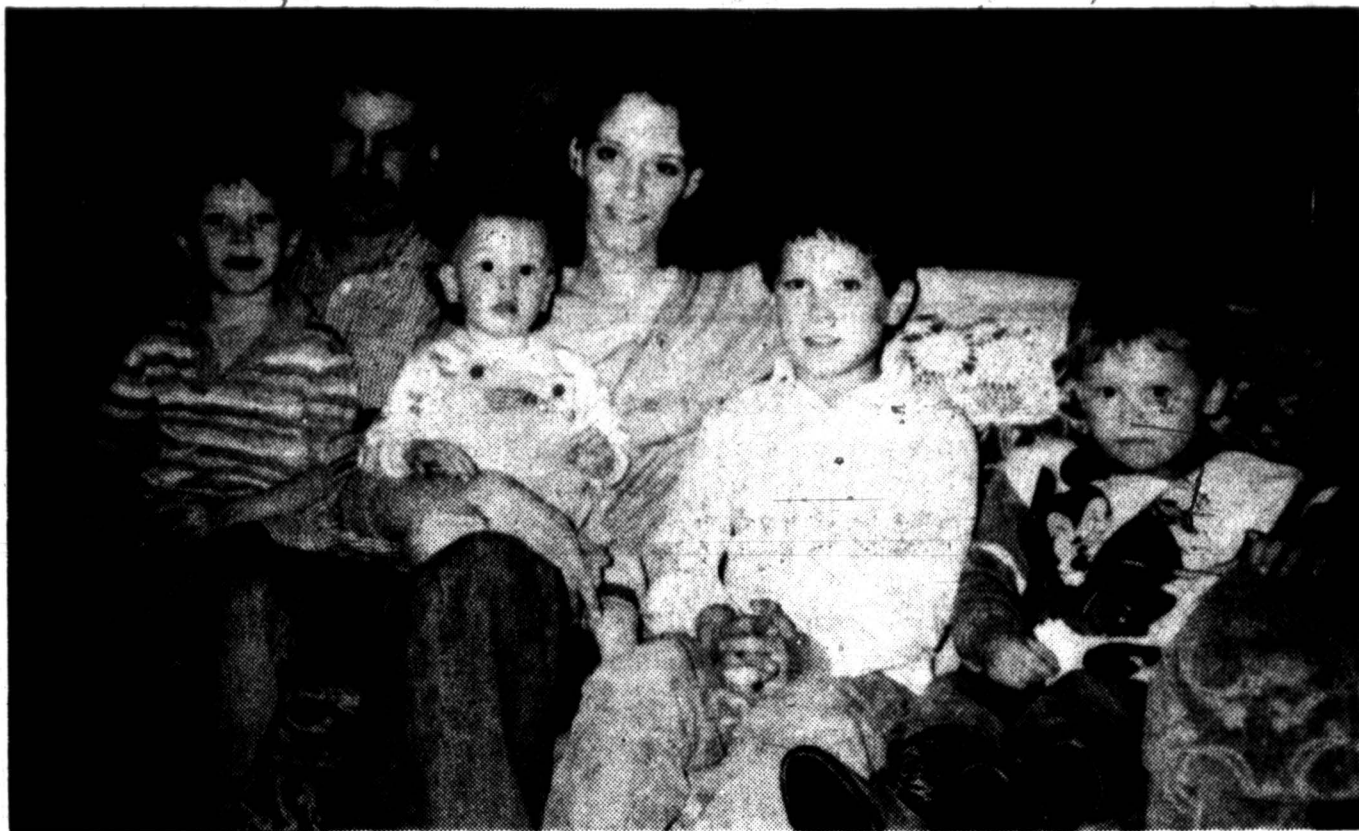

California Lottery procedures call for any winnings totalling under $1 million to be given on a lump-sum basis, Brian said, so they will not be getting installment-type payments.

Both Brian and Pam said they intend to keep their jobs, observing that they are not likely to be thinking of "retiring" in the near future. Brian said even Lucas still realizes that he will have to pay for part of his college education.

The Heneks family has lived in the Carmel Valley for 6½ years, after moving from Oregon. Brian became foreman at the ranch and now runs about 1,000 cattle over the 12,000-acre range.

A California Lottery official at the San Jose office said normal procedure for awards of the size of the Heneks' is to take the taxes out, "up front."

He said that for winnings of more than $1 million, the money is divided into 20 annual installments.

He also said that the grand prize in the current game still has not been won, and that the prize is now, "over $9 million." To win that, he said, a player would have to get six out of six numbers.

Pam Heneks said she and her husband play the Lotto 6/49 each Wednesday and Saturday, using personal numbers like birthdays and ages, and then getting one of the Quick-Pick tickets.

Pam Heneks said they had been playing Lotto for only a few months. "Prior to this, we've never won anything on the Lotto, and on the scratch-offs we've never gotten more than $5."

CARMEL RIVER WATER NEWS

By Henrietta Stern

New San Clemente Project What now?

HAPPY NEW Year! The purpose of today's column is to relive a bit of 1987 and outline some of the steps that must be taken in 1988 to bring a new dam on line. I'll focus on the Army Corps 404 permit, which is necessary before dam construction may begin. I will also touch on the State Water Rights permit, which would allow us to store and use Carmel River water. Hopefully, you will gain a better understanding of the long and complex process that awaits us.

First, a little history. In September 1987 the Draft Environmental Impact Report and Statement (EIR/EIS) for the New San Clemente Dam was approved by the Army Corps of Engineers and released for public comment. The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District (MPWMD) held several workshops on the EIR/EIS to stimulate public participation. At the Nov. 3 advisory election, voters within the district supported the concept of a New San Clemente Dam by about 2-1.

Nearly 400 pages of written and oral comments were received on the EIR/EIS for the dam in late November 1987. Some were minor, some were major; one letter was 24 pages long! By law, all must be responded to in the Final EIR/EIS.

Several federal and state resource agencies as well as local groups strongly urged that the Draft EIR be revised (some wanted it done all over again). They believed information about alternatives to the dam, fish and wildlife, mitigations for flooded wildlife habitat, and some growth impacts was deficient. Residents of Carmel Valley were mostly concerned about construction impacts, especially traffic and noise.

The district has been asked to reanalyze alternative projects to a Carmel River dam to see if they meet our water supply and river enhancement goals. Based on additional computer analyses that are forthcoming, the board will determine which, if any, alternatives should be studied in more detail. This work could take many months to complete, and might require a revised Draft EIR/EIS if the new information significantly alters the results or conclusions in the existing Draft EIR/EIS.

If a new Draft EIR/EIS is required, the overall project timeline would probably be delayed about eight to nine months. Luckily, this revised draft could be used for the State Water Rights hearing, which is tentatively scheduled for February 1989. If a revised draft is not necessary, the next major step will be completing a Final EIR/EIS. This is a very important document, as the Army Corps of Engineers will use it as the basic decision-making tool for the 404 permit.

But not so fast! If the corps feels it needs more information, it will ask for more. They may request a more detailed explanation of a specific topic (a modest task), but they could ask for a Supplemental EIR/EIS if they feel controversial issues are not fully addressed in the Final EIR/EIS. A supplemental EIR/EIS must include a draft and final version, and would entail many months of extra work. We do not plan to get into that situation, no sir!

Once the corps is satisfied that the environmental information is complete, they begin to prepare their Record of Decision for the 404 permit. In the meantime, the district will develop the legal findings for a public hearing to certify the New San Clemente Final EIR/EIS. Anyone who watches L.A. Law knows that if it's legal, it means mounds of paperwork! There's no exception here; findings for projects of this size and complexity could exceed hundreds of pages of documentation. Certification of the Final EIR/EIS is an important step as we can't receive our official water rights permit without it.

Here's where it could get a little sticky. As part of its Record of Decision, the corps must identify the "environmentally preferable alternative," that is, the project that results in the least harm to the environment. According to federal law, unless there are overriding economic or technical constraints, the permit should be given to the environmentally preferable alternative. This means that the 404 permit for the New San Clemente Dam could be denied if the corps believes another feasible alternative could meet the water supply and river enhancement goals of the district, but would result in less environmental damage. It is hard to say at this point in time whether such an alternative exists.

Assuming we get our permit from the corps, we're still not out of the woods yet! The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has the right to challenge the Army Corps' permit decision. They can "elevate" it to higher ranking authorities in Washington, D.C. for reconsideration. Or they can actually veto the corps permit if they believe significant environmental damage would result from the project. Thus the district intends to work closely with EPA throughout the permit process to forestall any negative action in the future.

As you can see, 1988 promises to be a busy year for the district board and staff members. It is also clear that development of any water project in California is a complex and lengthy process. We are watching and learning from the progress of two other dams, one in San Diego and one in Santa Barbara; both have been stymied by federal actions. We plan to use their experience to develop the best plan of action to speed the process along. Stay tuned!

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Like the phoenix

San Carlos Demolition Party

Oh Lord, be pleased to bless our beloved city of Monterey, her mayor, the city fathers and Peter Coniglio and his consortium of entrepreneurs who have organized and have assumed the risk of this enterprise, and whom we presume are picking up the tab for this party. Finally, we ask a blessing on the honest-to-goodness paisanos who would never miss a free party and who have gathered here in large numbers to participate in this bittersweet ceremony.

Symbolically we bid farewell to a famous landmark — The San Carlos Hotel — that has received a death sentence. We shed a tear of nostalgia over the building that has been a silhouette on the skyline above Calle Principal since 1927, as long as some of us can remember.

In the same breath that we say "Requiescat in Pace," we add "Viva," long life to the new transmogrified San Carlos. She is like the legendary Phoenix, the bird of mythology who lived to a venerable old age, burned herself to ashes on a funeral pyre only to rise youthful and alive from her ashes to live for many more years.

We stand in front of the bronze statue of Don Gaspar de Portola given to us by the present King of Spain, Don Juan Carlos Primero (who was not named for the hotel). On June 3, 1770, Don Gaspar de Portola and Padre Junipero Serra founded Monterey as the capital of California and established the Presidio, Mission and Royal Chapel under the patronage of an Italian Saint San Carlos Borromeo, the Cardinal Archbishop of Milano.

If anyone asks you what Don Gaspar de Portola is holding in his right hand, let them share the secret. It is an Annie Oakley, a complimentary reservation for the Governors Suite in the new San Carlos Hotel. Now in Latin, the language of prayer used by San Carlos Borromeo, we say: "Benedictio Dei Omnipotentis, Patris et Filia et Spiritus Sancti." Amen.

New traffic laws debut in 1988

IN 1987, the California Legislature enacted dozens of new traffic laws covering a wide range of subjects, from freeway violence to all-terrain vehicles. Most of these new statutes take effect Jan. 1, 1988, unless otherwise noted.

Perhaps the most highly-publicized traffic law of 1987 took effect on May 28, 1987 — the increase in the maximum speed limit on rural interstates from 55 to 65 mph. So far, the limit has been raised on only 1,157 miles of rural interstate freeway, and the higher limit does not apply to large trucks or autos pulling trailers. As of Jan. 1, the fine for violating the speed limit in a bus, motor truck, or truck tractor having three or more axles or drawing another vehicle jumps to $100 for the first conviction and $300 for a second or subsequent conviction.

Owners of personalized license plates will be able to purchase a third plate to display or keep as a souvenir. The cost is an additional $35, which goes to the California Environmental License Plate Fund. Unlawful use of these special display plates is a misdemeanor.

Currently the Penal Code defines gross vehicular manslaughter while intoxicated; the Vehicle Code defines felony driving under the influence. In many cases, a defendant is charged with both violations for a single incident. A common defense practice has been to offer a guilty plea on the manslaughter charge in exchange for dropping the felony DUI charge, to avoid driver's license sanctions. After the New Year, gross vehicular manslaughter while intoxicated is considered a felony DUI violation for both driver's license sanctions and penalty enhancement for subsequent convictions.

Another new statute prohibits a motorist from entering an intersection or marked crosswalk unless there is sufficient space on the other side for the vehicle to clear the intersection without obstructing cross traffic. It also makes it a violation for a turning driver to enter an intersection on a yellow signal if there is not enough space to clear it. Both violations are treated as parking offenses, but carry fines ranging from $50 to $100 for a first conviction to $250 to $500 for third or subsequent offenses.

The removal of an abandoned vehicle is simplified by legislation permitting the immediate removal of a vehicle worth less than $100 from public or private property if it lacks an engine, windshield, wheels, tires, or any other equipment necessary for safe highway operation. Scrappers are exempted from paying past due registration fees on these vehicles.

Effective in 1988 is the Youthful Drunk Driver Visitation Program Act. It authorizes the courts, as a condition of probation, to order a convicted DUI driver to visit hospital emergency rooms, morgues, or chronic alcoholism treatment facilities. Preference will be given to individuals 18-21 years old at the time of the DUI offense, and they must consent to participate in the program.

Animals can no longer be transported in an open truck bed or other area intended for cargo unless the animal is caged or cross-tethered, the space is enclosed or has side and tail racks at least 46 inches from the floor. The statute exempts livestock and working dogs used in ranching or farming.

The three- and four-wheel off-highway vehicles known as ATVs or all-terrain vehicles have a disproportionately high record of deaths and injuries. The Legislature has decided to mandate ATV safety training and special operating rules for riders under age 18, to become effective Jan. 1, 1990. Under the new law, young ATV operators would be required to attend an approved ATV safety course and be certified by the Department of Motor Vehicles. The certificate must be carried when riding on public lands. They must also be supervised by an adult, and, if under 15½, wear a helmet.

The Legislature enacted several changes in the Penal Code in response to widespread concern about the epidemic of freeway violence that erupted last summer. Effective Sept. 26, 1987, a vehicle used in a highway assault can be forfeited and sold, and an additional five years is added to the penalty of a person convicted of a discharging a firearm at an occupied motor vehicle, resulting in injury or death.

As of Jan. 1, 1988, brandishing a firearm from a motor vehicle is a felony, and the courts are prohibited from granting probation to a person convicted of causing injury or death by discharging a firearm from or at an occupied motor vehicle. Even the brandishing of a replica firearm is a misdemeanor if the act causes another person fear or apprehension.

ART BLACK takes his new job as city's new fire prevention specialist seriously: he will begin an annual inspection of all of the city's businesses. (David Leland photo.)

Art Black named fire prevention officer for Carmel Fire Dept.

By DAVID LELAND

CARMEL'S NEWLY hired fire prevention officer says he sees his job as a necessary first step in keeping the city fire-free and safe for residents.

Art Black, who has served on the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department since 1975, began his new tenure with the Carmel Fire Department last week and will begin his prevention duties in earnest this month.

"The heart of the fire service is a good fire prevention program," explains the Carmel native. "The best fire is one that never happens."

Black adds that Carmel has a high potential fire risk because of its older wooden buildings and high density within the business district.

With this in mind, shortly after the first of the year, he will begin an annual inspection of each of the city's 800 businesses.

"Primarily I want to work with the business owners and occupants to ensure a fire-safe community," says Black, who is also licensed by the state fire academy as a fire prevention specialist. "I'm going to be working with the business owners, not against them."

Business owners will be given ample time to correct any potential fire safety problems identified by an inspection before they are inspected again, explains Black.

Black should be considered an authority on fire prevention: he is currently program supervisor for the Monterey Peninsula College Fire Science Program, where he graduated with a degree in fire science in 1979.

The new fire prevention specialist says he will also spend his working hours speaking to community groups when asked and will be offering fire-prevention tips in The Carmel Pine Cone.

"I'm happy to have the opportunity to work with the city of Carmel," says Black. "(Now) I can make sure we're as fire safe as we can be."

'Weight Loss and You'

Salinas Valley Memorial Hospital is offering a free lecture, "Weight Loss and You," from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 16 in the hospital cafeteria.

Participants will learn how to choose the right weight loss method for themselves by identifying the factors that contribute to their being overweight, and after a discussion of various weight loss methods, choosing the one that best fits their needs. The program offers no miracle diets, only gradual, safe weight loss.

Instructor is Janine Robinette, director of Health Promotion at Salinas Valley Memorial Hospital.

Three golf courses primed for Spalding Pro-Am

JULIUS ERVING, "Dr. J" of the Philadelphia 76ers, has retired from the NBA wars and will join the field of amateur golfers competing in the $250,000 Spalding Invitational Pro-Am tournament, arriving on the Monterey Peninsula Thursday through Sunday, Jan. 7-10.

Erving; Jim Rice of the Boston Red Sox; and Toronto Blue Jays outfielder, Lloyd Moseby, head the latest list of entries announced by tournament founder-director Harold Firstman.

"It always has been our policy to invite fresh, new players and winners to play in the Spalding, along with some of our familiar names who have had outstanding success in the past," Firstman said. "Another winner who has been added to our field of touring professionals is Canadian Dave Barr, who won the Atlanta Classic this year and earned $202,241."

Firstman also announced entries from three former champions, Mark Pfeil (1976), Bobby Clampett (1980) and Tim Norris (1986). Other former champions in the field include Al Geiberger (1979) and Johnny Miller (1983).

Also joining the field are Roger Maltbie; Mark Wiebe; Bill Glasson; Gene Sauers, winner of $244,655; Danny Edwards; Bob Gilder; Lon Hinkle; George Archer, a past Masters winner; and Dave Stockton, former two-time PGA champion.

Rice, the only major league player to have 35 home runs and 200 base hits in three straight seasons (1977-79), has played in several Spalding tournaments. This is the first appearance for Erving and Moseby.

The 1983 World Cup individual champion, Barr attracted considerable attention in the 1985 U.S. Open when he battled Andy North down to the wire before finishing in a tie for second place with Denis Watson and T.C. Chen. He shot 66-68-66-65--265 to win at Atlanta in May.

Another foreign star in the field is Britisher Howard Clark. Clark was also a World Cup individual winner in 1986, as well as a member of the victorious European Ryder Cup team last summer in Ohio.

Glasson tied for second in the Provident tournament, won by John Inman, who is making his debut in the Spalding, and tied for second in the Centel Classic, won by Rookie-of-the-Year, Keith Clearwater, also playing in the Spalding.

Edwards finished third in the Los Angeles Open, one stroke behind T.C. Chen and Ben Crenshaw, who tied for first. He also tied for second in the Pensacola Open.

Sauers, who has come on strong the last two years on the PGA Tour, finished 38th on the money list, his best showing during his four-year career. He tied for second in the Bank of Boston tournament, an event he won in 1986.

Clampett, who won the Spalding as an amateur in 1980, enjoyed his best year on the tour since 1982 as he won $124,872. His best finish was a second in the Anheuser-Busch tournament.

Defending champion Ken Green, who fought off a bad cold and strong challenges from Willie Wood, Don Pooley and Jan Stephenson to win last year's title, will be back to defend his crown in the 72-hole Spalding tournament, which kicks off the 1988 professional golf schedule.

Green earned $273,271 and placed 36th on the money ladder. He finished second in the International and tied for fifth in the B.C. Open. He will be challenged by a strong field headed by Greg Norman, the seventh leading money winner of 1987 with $535,450, Mark Calcavecchia, 10th with $522,398, Dan Pohl, 1987 Vardon Trophy winner, steady Mike Reid, Steve Pate, Keith Clearwater, Craig Stadler, Al Geiberger, winner of three tournaments since joining the PGA Senior Tour, and Johnny Miller, winner of the AT&T at Pebble Beach last February.

In addition, five stars from the LPGA Tour are expected to challenge for top honors. Leading the women is Jan Stephenson, the number four money winner on the LPGA list, who tied for fourth in last

Short plays of Tennessee Williams produced

THE ACTING Company, America's only professional repertory theater company touring nationwide will present Five by Tenn, a retrospective of early short plays by Tennessee Williams, at the Sunset Theater in Carmel. Directed by the Company's Artistic Director Michael Kahn, these five one-acts are a celebration of the art and humanity of America's greatest lyric playwright. As the touring arm of the nation's John F. Kennedy Center, the Acting Company will perform Five by Tenn at 8 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 10.

The five selections chosen from Williams' repertoire of short works are The Lady of Larkspur Lotion, The Long Goodbye, Portrait of a Madonna, Talk to Me Like the Rain and Let Me Listen and This Property is Condemned. These explorations of a poetic craftsman reflect the themes, characters and language that appear again and again in his longer, acknowledged masterpieces.

The Lady of Larkspur Lotion is an archetype of Williams' earlier works where the fantasy of grace and hope overlaps with the seedy French Quarter of New Orleans for a faded Southern belle and a derelict writer.

The Long Goodbye has often been considered a predecessor the The Glass Menagerie. In this piece, Williams introduces another writer, one vacating a shabby mid-western tenement. As men move out the dilapidated tables and chairs, the writer replaces them with poignant reflections of his disintegrated family.

Portrait of a Madonna is a passionate sketch of a genteel Southern lady who has been forgotten by the institutions of marriage and aristocracy. Unlike her, time has never lost its grip, and she is haunted by an illusory, bygone lover.

Talk to Me like the Rain and Let Me Listen moves the setting of Five by Tenn to a small furnished room in midtown Manhattan, where a young man laments over seemingly endless drunken nights and a young woman yearns for euphorial freedom.

Finally, This Property is Condemned peers in on an abandoned young girl as she defiantly describes where she's been and where she's going to a kite-flying boy.

Tickets are priced at $12.50 and $10. Sunset Theater is located at San Carlos Street at Ninth Avenue in Carmel-by-the-Sea. For reservations, call 624-3996.

THE ACTING Company, founded by John Houseman, will present Five by Tenn. This retrospective of early short plays by Tennessee Williams will be staged at 8 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 10 at Sunset Theater in Carmel.

Ohio Ballet debuts new work at Sunset Theater

THE OHIO Ballet, directed by Heinz Poll, will perform at Carmel's Sunset Theater at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 13. The dance concert is part of the Festival of Dance continuing at the center.

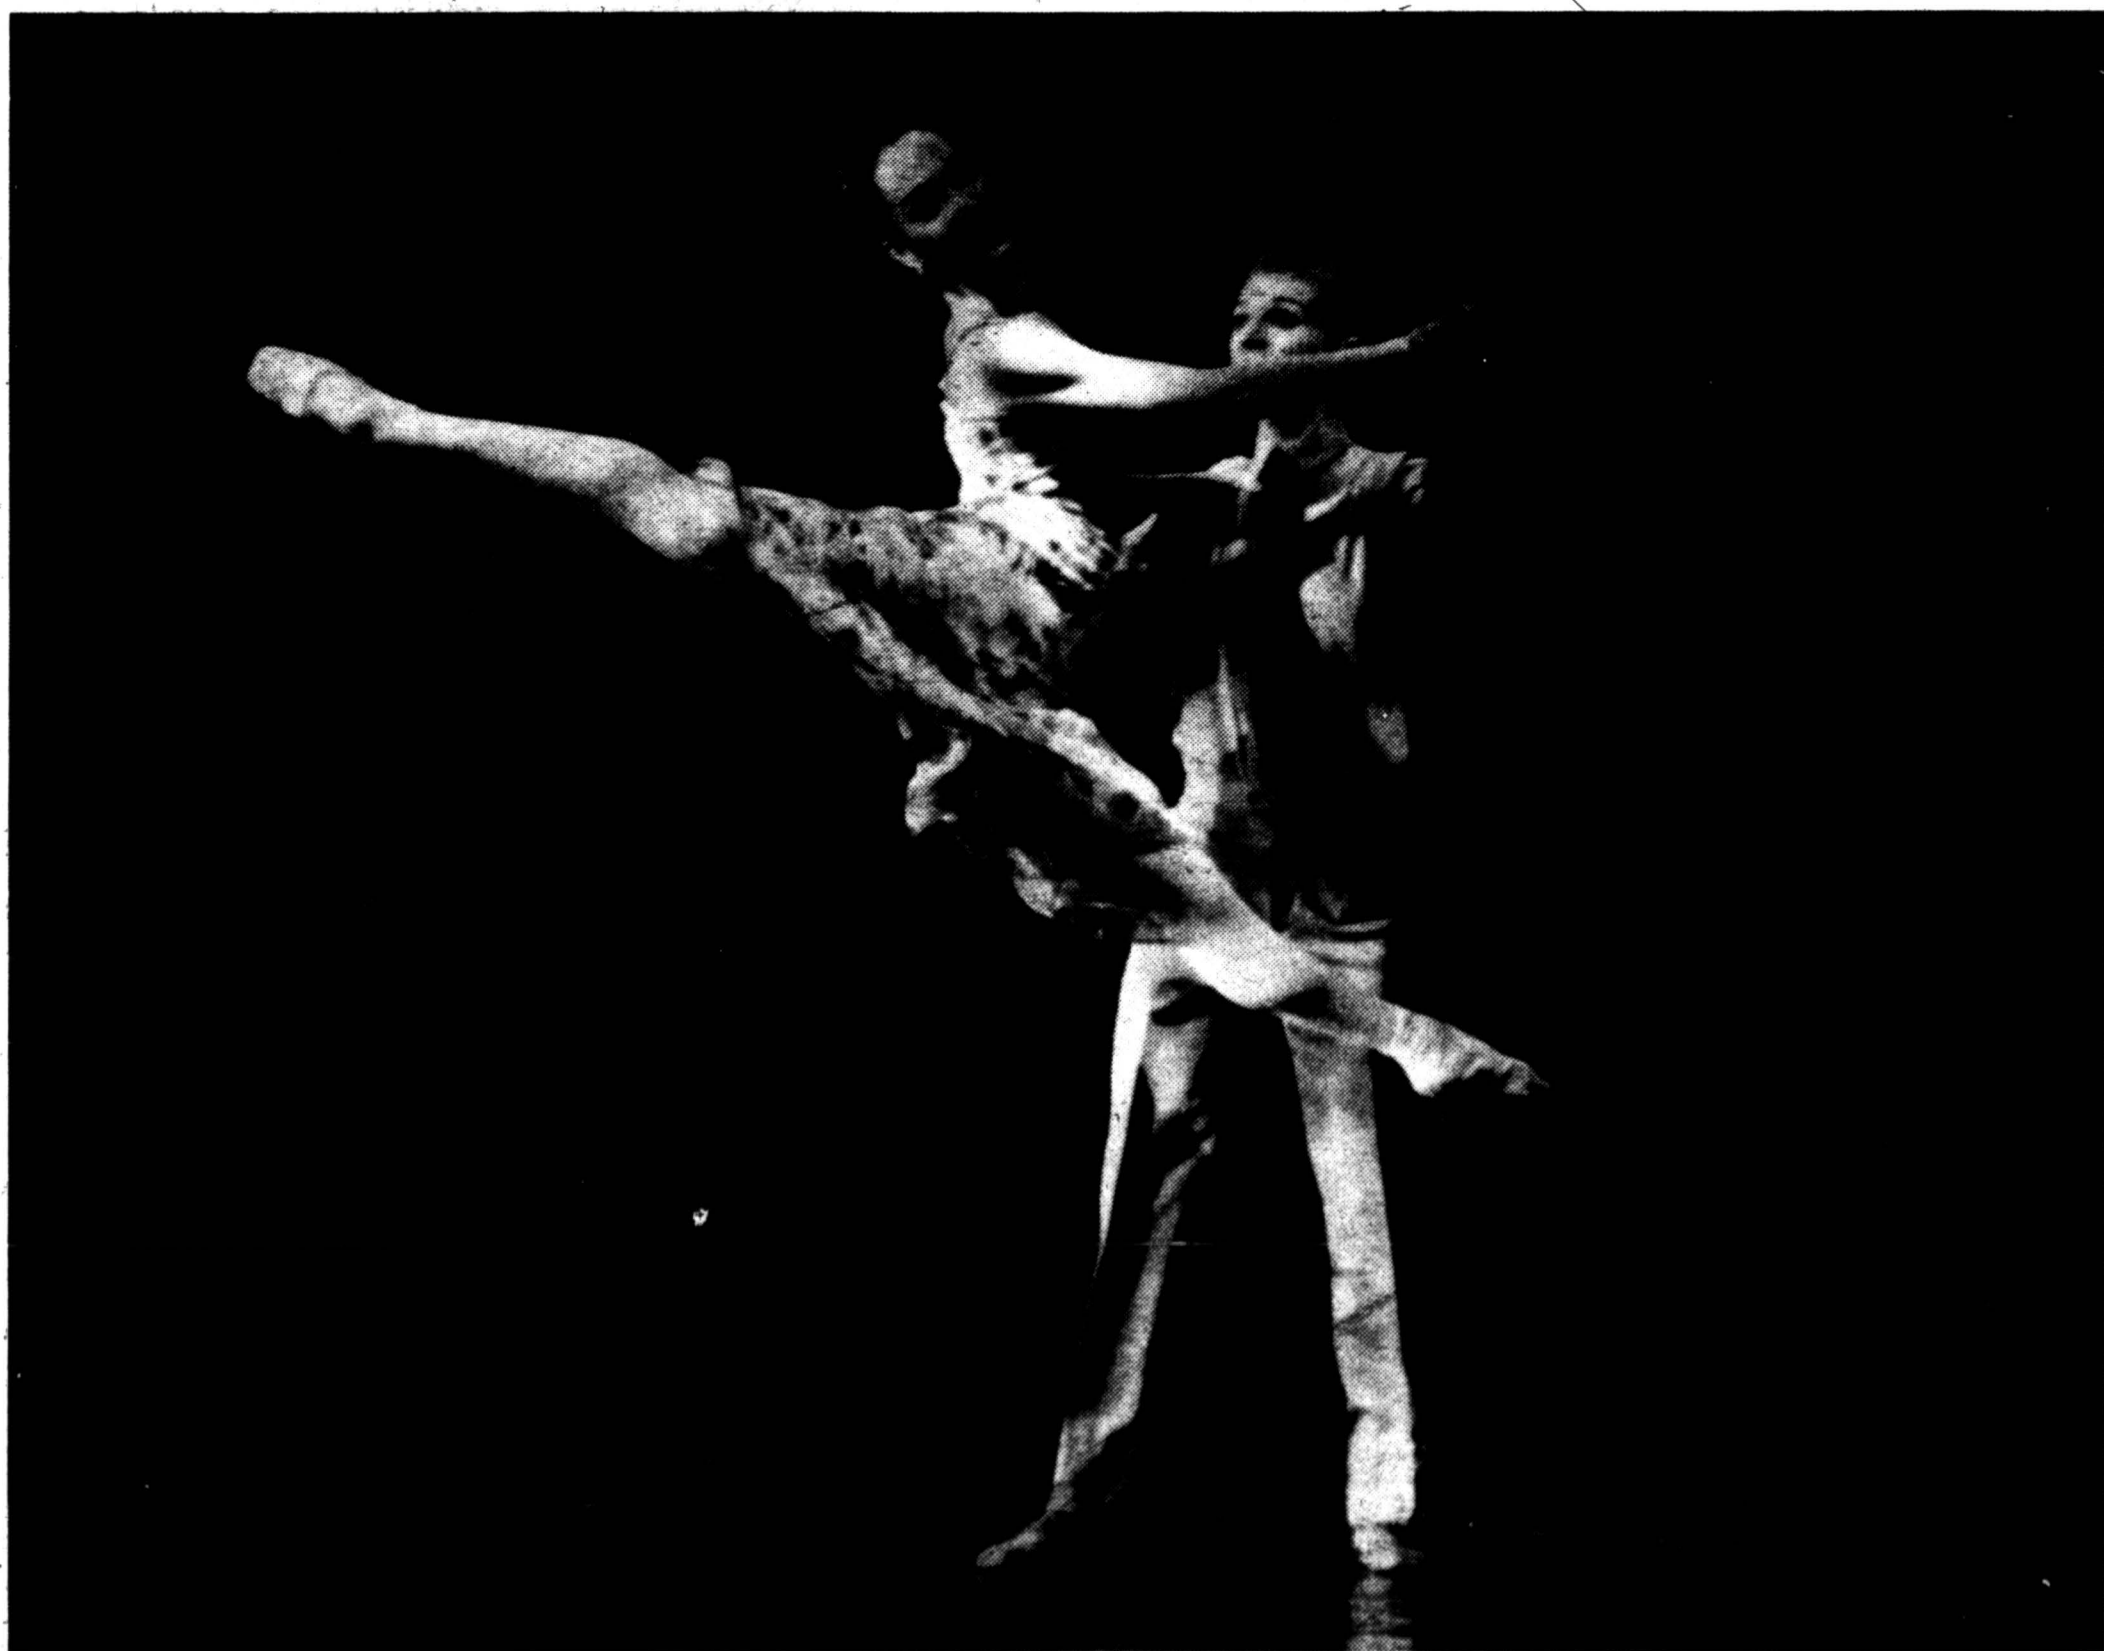

The Ohio Ballet was founded and directed by Heinz Poll. Since its inception the company has performed in 160 cities and 34 states. Notable engagements include the New York Dance Festival, the inaugural season of Spoleto Festival U.S.A., Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, Brooklyn Center at Brooklyn College and the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

Ohio Ballet made its European debut in 1980 at the Festival of Two Worlds in Spoleto, Italy, and made its South America, Central America and Mexico debut appearances during the fall of 1986. The company presented its first Manhattan season in February 1986 with an eight-performance run at the Joyce Theater.

When he founded the company in 1968, Poll began with a student ensemble of eight. He has since worked to bring his own style to ballet and has developed and maintained a vision, that of presenting a company with unique character. His style comprises elements that are known distinctively as Heinz Poll's aesthetic.

The most visible elements of Poll's working dynamics, the 23 dancers of Ohio Ballet, are rehearsed to perform with great energy, speed and technical clarity. Although he shapes a company that exhibits ensemble qualities, Poll encourages the dancers to ex-

CARMEL will be the site of a world premiere on Wednesday, Jan. 13, when the Ohio Ballet debuts a new work by David

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Notes for the newborn year

THE JAZZ WORLD'S undergoing mighty alterations right before our eyes.

When pianist/composer Thelonius Monk made the cover of Time magazine in the '60s, jazz writers and the musicians themselves got caught up in a years-long controversy. A genius who'd paid hard dues was lionized by the larger culture and the art form's collective gut (or significant portions thereof) mistrusted that fact. Deeply.

Why? "Jazz is the music of Black America," the late jazz critic Ralph J. Gleason said in one of his most biting pieces, "and it does nothing if you get mad at me for saying so." Great innovators faced racism and rotten work conditions simply in doing what they did so well; too many saw their discoveries ripped off for profit by populizers from the dominant group. And so a dislike of commercial well-being set in: one who "made it" must have "sold out." This complex equation (poverty demonstrates the cultural commando's commitment and real worth) killed a lot of its adherents.

Now comes word that brilliant jazz trumpeter Wynton Marsalis placed second on GQ magazine's list of Ten Most Stylish Men for 1987 — and the development sparks no snide reactions. Young players today are tough, well-educated, convinced of the dignity within their calling. They have no problem with "doing well." Wynton may pontificate rather stuffily on occasion, but he's (an) example of the healthful sea-change. The GQ roster put Marsalis ahead of such heavyweights as Senator Bill Bradley, television honcho Grant Tinker, and John Scully of Apple Computers.

CARMEL MAYOR Clint Eastwood stands out as a force vector in the music's ever-wider outreach. His film on Charles (Bird) Parker will emphasize for the general public that this art form flows from a rich history. More, his production values communicate genuine respect for jazz and its pioneers. And someone in a position to know tells me that excellent film actress Beverly D'Angelo has optioned the 1981 autobiography of myth-sized jazz vocalist Anita O'Day.

MEANWHILE, executive Mike Cannon of the Monterey Hilton has come up with a knockout notion. Why not, asks Mike, name major suites over there after jazz giants like Duke Ellington and Count Basie? Why not thus honor Monterey Jazz Festival straw boss Jimmy Lyons as well? Mike's out of town on business till mid-January; I'll touch in when he's back and see if the item needs an update.

A LEGENDARY jazzman was in our area this week, playing a gig at the downtown Sheraton's Monterey Bay Club on Jan. 6. Club manager Terri Waros brought back the amazing San Francisco pianist Jon Jang. And Jon's drummer was none other than Eddie Moore, who has worked with Sonny Rollins, Betty Carter, Joe Williams, Bobby Hutcherson, on and on. Portions of the inspired date were taped for broadcast over KRML Jazz Radio (1410AM) later this month.

ONE OBSERVER'S "Best Of" picks for 1987 —

Local Jazz Musician: Bill Jackson, superb drummer who doubles so beautifully on vibes. A valuable addition, too, on the Monterey Jazz Festival board.

Local Vocalist: Peggy Nesbitt Brown. Lovely voice, good bag of tunes, a fetching humor about herself that could serve as working (model) for self-styled "stars."

Arranger/Composer: Don Schamber of Monterey Peninsula College. Somehow this witty perfectionist must be designated a regional treasure.

Jazzy trio: Biff Smith on piano, drummer Andy Weiss, Terry Miller's electric bass.

Student Player: Keyboardist Eddie Mendenhall of Robert Louis Stevenson School. In the same breath one must mention his RLS bandmate — trumpeter Danny Marks.

Jazz Educator: Every one of them. No duds. Energetic, creative, hip without being slick, wise in the ways of very young players.

Next time, let's look at a few of last year's foremost jazz recordings.

(A much-published poet and arts commentator, John Detro does the morning "Jazz Tides" show over KRML Radio — 9 a.m. to noon Monday-Friday and 6-11 a.m. on Saturdays. His specialty show entitled "Student Jazz" runs between 11 a.m. and noon Saturdays.)

Celebrity cooks prepare specialties during Gourmet Gala

THE MONTEREY Vineyard Gourmet Gala to benefit the March of Dimes returns Saturday, Jan. 16 to the Grand Ballroom of the Monterey Sheraton Hotel. Monterey's third annual gala kicks off the March of Dimes' year-long 50th anniversary celebration. More than 25 national and local luminaries will prepare their favorite recipes in kitchen settings created by Monterey's most prestigious interior designers, bringing to life the Gala's theme of, "Our Golden Year."

Master of Ceremonies, Allen Funt will be joined by celebrity chefs including actors and actresses Ernest Borgnine, Barbara Eden, Lorenzo Lamas, Tab Hunter, Doug McClure, Hugh O'Brian, Roger Perry, Michael Swan ("As The World Turns"), Zelda Rubenstein ("Poltergeist"), and JoAnne Worley.

Other "chefs" include: The Monterey Vineyard Executive Vice President and Winemaker Cary Gott, Prominent Civic Leader Artie Early, Congressman and Mrs. Leon Panetta, Executive Director of the Monterey Film Festival and the Frohman Academy Mikel Pippi, James McGillen of Lorimar Productions, Alan Shugart of Seagate Industries, Monterey Assemblyman Sam Farr, Supervisor and Mrs. Sam Karas, Wine Merchant and Grocer Darrell Corti, Author Terry Allen, Donna Murray of the American Foundation for AIDS Research, author Tim Galloway ("Inner Game of Golf"), noted plastic surgeon Dr. Stanley Frileck, Chief of Pediatrics at Monterey Community Hospital Dr. Shreve Archer, and Fashion Designer Monique Vendetti.

Judging the celebrity recipes are Sardine Factory Co-owner Bert Cptino, Author and Cheese-maker Laura Chenel, Travel and Leisure Publisher James Berrien, Sunset Home Economics editor Jerry Di Vecchio, Highlands Inn General Manager Peter Komposch, Royal Viking Line's Culinary Director Daniel Durand, and Cookbook Author Maida Heatter ("Maida Heatter's Great Desserts").

Interior Designers responsible for the evening's brilliant ambiance through creative kitchen vignette showcase include Jan Gardner, Joy Geller, Charles Gruwell, Yoko-Margaret Whitaker, Joy Holland, Shene Kouretas, Linda Lamb, Sue Blondell, Ginna Landes, Nancy McIninch, T. Scott Moore, Rudy Reate, Jerry Welling, Thom Beckman and Larry Drenke.

This evening represents the culmination of year-long planning by a group of volunteers, headed by Artie Early. The Monterey Gourmet Gala is expected to raise $65,000 towards the prevention of birth defects. Betsy Farley, the March of Dimes Monterey Bay District Director, comments: "I'm astonished to realize there are nearly 150 volunteers pulling together to create this evening! This generous gift of their time and effort is overwhelming, and truly exemplifies the best in community support."

The evening begins with a reception showcasing Monterey County wines and restaurants. Guest mingle and watch celebrities prepare their entries for the competition. While judges evaluate, a 12-course dinner of the celebrity recipes is duplicated by the Sheraton's Chef Heinz. An awards ceremony follows dinner. A silent auction highlights the evening with items including a 13-day Royal Viking European cruise, a weekend at Harvey's Resort in Tahoe, a Monterey Bay Sunset cruise aboard the "Chardonnay," and dinner for twelve in The Monterey Vineyard's unique barrel room.

Music by "The Royal Society Jazz Orchestra" completes the evening. Tickets available (limited seating) are $150 per person.

For more information call the March of Dimes at 373-8482.

press individual stage artistry. Each dancer is a valued component of his statement as director, ballet master, principal choreographer and artist.

Poll's dances are the centerpiece of the company repertory. The active repertory of 33 works includes 21 by him. He often chooses lyrical music of the Romantic period to which he choreographs works that evoke familiar human experience. Annually he adds a piece to the repertory by another choreographer.

Poll further distinguishes the company by choosing his staff of artistic collaborators: concert pianist David Fisher as music director; dancer and teacher Brenda Steady as ballet mistress; and lighting designer Thomas R. ## Master pianist displays fine form

MASTER PIANIST Jorge Bolet came to Carmel's Sunset Theater Jan. 3 to play the second recital of the current Keyboard Artist Series. At first glance, his program appeared to consist of war-horses on the advanced piano student level (except for the closing Liszt work) — and limited to the Romantic Period at that.

Beginning with two Mendelssohn works was an interesting and refreshing change from the usual Classical "warm up on it and throw it away" opening selection. The "Prelude and Fugue in E Minor," op. 35 and the "Rondo Capriccioso," op. 14, were beautifully expounded. Nothing had to be swept under the musical carpet or thrown away, because Bolet is a true professional and a virtuoso musician who can make almost anything sound like music. No student ever played the Rondo Capriccioso the way he did. The melody of the Andante sang lyrically and tenderly and the Scherzo sparkled and danced lightly. His tempos were just right and the whole performance had elegance and charm.

The Beethoven "Sonata in F Minor," op. 57 "Appassionata" was another revelation of clarity, good musical taste and superb technique. Bolet's finely honed sense of proportion, both for the lyrical and the dramatic, was showcased in the first movement. Beethoven's emphatic tonal contrasts were expertly controlled. There were no musical hurricanes to tear the music to tatters. Bolet displays no histrionics in his playing. He doesn't act out the music, rather letting it speak for itself with freshness and clarity.

The Andante con variazioni was allowed to progress with a measured flow. It was sensitively projected and its quietly romantic drama led neatly into the very tastefully conceived Finale. Here too the pianist actually again departed from custom and respected Beethoven's tempo marking. It was a pleasure to hear what the music really contains. Having its proportions take shape with the crescendos building to each deceptive cadence and the final airy presto coming out with rapid majesty rather than as a large over-pedaled blur, proved a rare and novel listening experience.

CESAR FRANCK whose "Prelude, Chorale and Fugue" was next on the program, was originally a concert pianist in his youth, but then spent most of his mature years as a virtuoso organist. This work written late in his life, shows the composer's affinity for both keyboard instruments and Bolet underlines its majestic dimensions and its elegant fluidity. He used a different and generally larger proportioned dynamic palette. One was aware of massive tonalities and substantial sound, even while clearly hearing the voice lines in the fugue.

The program closed with "Reminiscences of Norma" by Liszt. These florid piano transcriptions of operas were once enormously popular. They made familiar the works they were based on and audiences loved them. Liszt was hugely

Bluegrass, poetry blended at Cherry

The Squeezehogs, a San Francisco band that performs country, honky tonk, blues and bluegrass, and poet Taelen Thomas will present an evening of music and poetry at Cherry Hall in Carmel.

The Saturday, Jan. 9 program is presented by the Poetic Drama Institute and the Carl Cherry Foundation. It will begin at 8 p.m.

Taelen Thomas, local poet, storyteller and teacher, has performed throughout the United States and is a member of the Stone Circle poets. His one-man shows, Shades of Stanley Ketchel and Lyrics and Stories from Ancient Greece, received critical acclaim and for the past two years has received "Critic's Spotlight" awards from Monterey Bay area drama critics.

The Squeezehogs consist of bandmembers Pete Pierce (banjo, guitar, fiddle and vocals); John Fuller (guitar, mandolin and vocals); Carolyn Cirimele (bassist, accordion vocals and songwriter); and Kari Larson (mandolin, bass and harmony vocals).

All seats are $5. Cherry Hall is at Guadalupe and Fourth in Carmel-by-the-Sea. For reservations, contact the Cherry Foundation office at 624-7491; or Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561.

successful with them financially. It takes an outstanding piano technique to be able to even attempt them. There are roller-coaster runs, extravagant trills, acres of arpeggios and mountains of chords. Just playing all the notes won't do it either and while I wish the artist had expended his energies and abilities on something I would consider more worthy of him, it was fun to hear what glories he could create out of such musical trivia.

It took three encores to send the enthusiastic near-capacity audience home. The next concert in the series will feature Andre Watts on Tuesday evening, March 22.

naments this year — the Santa Barbara, Safeco at Seattle and the Konica San Jose Classic. And she did this despite being off the tour for at least six months with broken ribs suffered in an auto accident.

Stephenson is intent on winning here. She spent four days at Carmel Valley Ranch last September, practicing on the 10th, 11th, 12th and 13th holes.

"I wanted to get comfortable on those holes, Stephenson said. "I think they will be the pivotal holes at Carmel Valley Ranch."

The other four women in the Spalding tournament all finished in the top 18 on the money list. Chris Johnson was eighth and had two victories, Cindy Rarick was 11th, also with two victories, Amy Alcott was 17th although she was winless, and Val Skinner was 18th with one victory.

Jody Rosenthal, another LPGA star, who was the fifth leading money winner, has withdrawn from the tournament, according to Firstman.

Carmel Valley Ranch will be the tournament headquarters. Two rounds of the 72-hole tournament will be played over the Pete Dye layout.

The field of 90 professionals and 270 amateurs will be divided the first three days with 30 pros and 90 amateurs scheduled for each of the three courses — Pebble Beach, Carmel Valley Golf & Country Club at Quail Lodge and Carmel Valley Ranch.

The final round, scheduled for play at Carmel Valley Ranch, will have the low '60 professionals and ties, as well as the low 10 amateur teams and ties. The final two rounds will be televised by ESPN.

Each professional will be paired with three amateurs, but will change amateur teams each day for the first three rounds. All players will change courses for the first three rounds. In the final round at Carmel Valley Ranch, the professionals will be paired with professionals only. The amateur teams will be strictly on their own on the final day.

Spectator tickets are available at all three courses. Tickets are $15 per day or $40 for the series. Proceeds from the Spalding Pro-Am go to the Monterey Kiwanis Club for the organization's youth-oriented programs.

For additional information, call the Spalding offices at 484-2151.

museum is now accepting new volunteers to serve as docents at the museum, located at 559 Pacific St. in Monterey.

Monterey Peninsula Museum needs docents

If you have always wanted to learn more about art and finally have the time, you may want to become a docent at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art. Docent training, an eight-week orientation program designed to teach about the museum and the work of docents, will begin at 10 a.m. Monday, Jan. 25 and will continue on consecutive Mondays from 10 a.m. until noon through March 21.

"There are no set requirements," according to Joanne Honegger, docent council chairman. "Hospital auxiliary, teaching, art or art-history, or other museum experience might be helpful, but none are mandatory. The only real requirements are a willingness to learn and, while learning, to help with the many interesting docent activities."

With 3,234 hours to their credit so far this year, the museum's 51 active docents serve as volunteer personnel, conducting tours for both adults and children, Tea-Cup Tours for senior citizens and hospital patients, providing art education and assistance with installation of exhibits, research, conservation, and registration.

Applications and additional information are available at the museum or by calling Sonia McCormick at 625-0339 or Pat Matheson at 625-2304 (Docent Training Co-Chairman) or Joanne Honegger at 624-5476.

Art by special people shown

The Seaside Art Commission is sponsoring an exhibition of paintings, photography and sculptures created by handicapped individuals. The exhibit will be shown in the Seaside City Hall Art Gallery, 440 Harcourt Ave., Seaside, from Jan. 12 through 28.

Individuals from the community and Handicapped Activities Unlimited of Pacific Grove have created work in several media. Art to a physically, mentally or emotionally handicapped individual is a window of communication to the non-handicapped world, as well as a mirror for self understanding and growth. The resulting art is almost always an adventure in discovery for both artist and viewer.

Handicapped Activities has been organizing art exhibitions since 1973. Viewing hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. For information, call 899-6270.

"Hansel Cottage"

Edition of 250

"WHAT IS A HAND-COLORED, ONE OF A KIND, LIMITED EDITION PENCIL REPRODUCTION?"

From the original pencil drawing which G.S. Hill completes after approximately 10 to 160 hours per drawing, a black and white photo negative is produced. The photo of the drawing is then off-set printed on ivory paper in black ink. The edition's range from 100 to 250 prints per drawing and each print is hand watercolored, signed, titled, numbered and logged by Mr. Hill.

The pencil gives a very detailed image of the many pleasing subjects G.S. Hill finds on both East and West coasts. The water coloring adds soft and subtle hints of color. Each print varies slightly in tints and highlights.

We are proud to present the entire collection either in oak framing or unframed and shrink wrapped for the works protection. All prints come double-matted and are hand-beveled cut in ivory chosen for the outer mat and black for the inner mat.

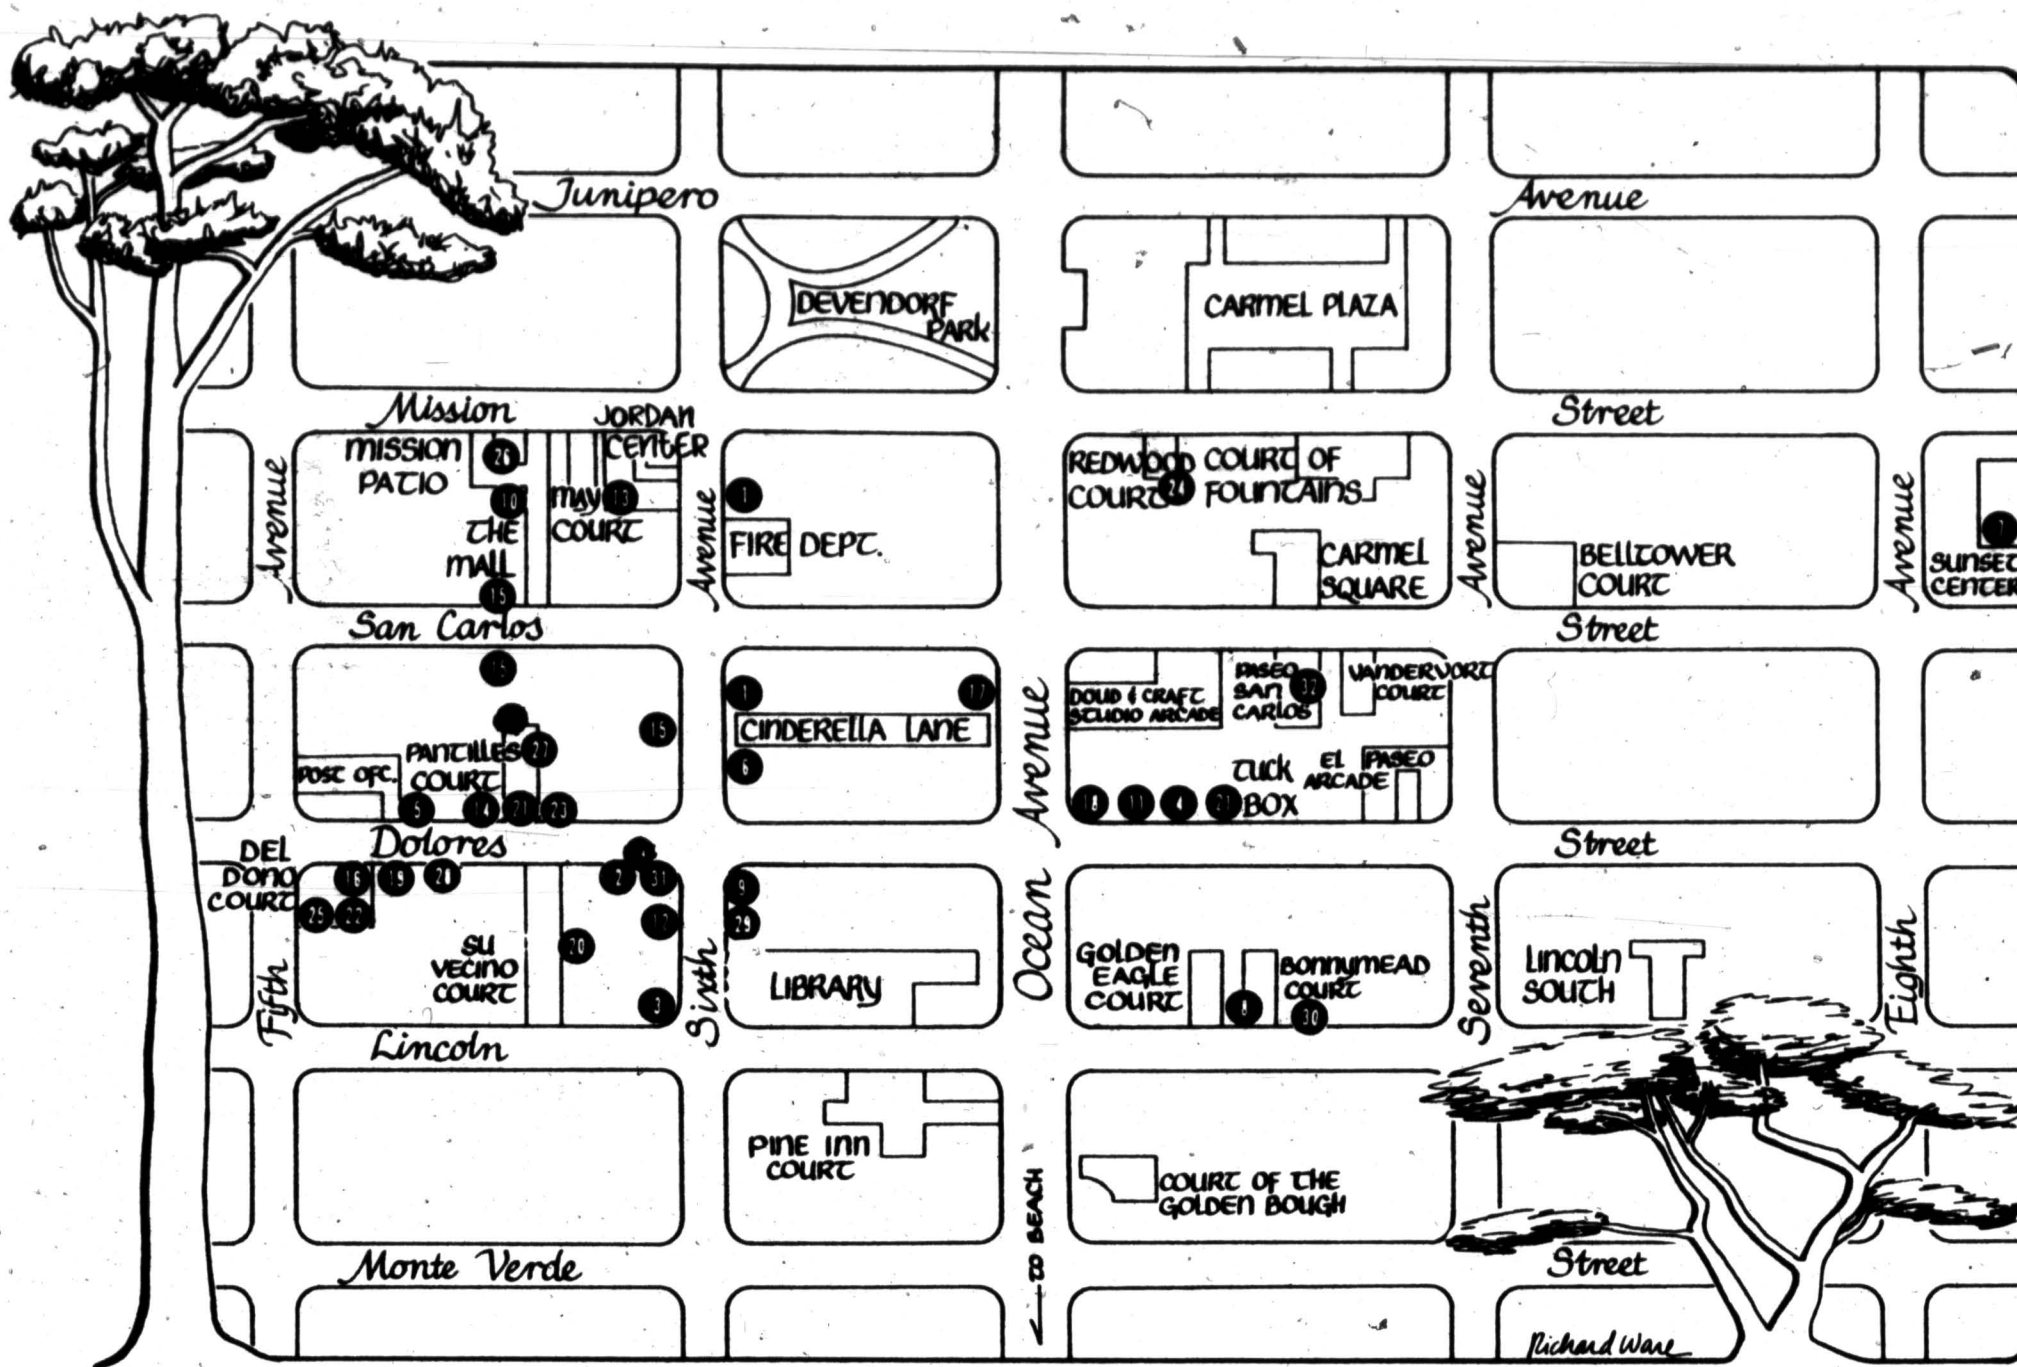

"Mission Ranch" exhibit coming the end of January.

What a lovely place for a wedding!

There are many centers of attention in the extraordinary new house at 209 Hermann Drive in Monterey. But perhaps the most memorable is the long, high living room with a cathedral ceiling of finished cedar planks and a cathedral window at the far end. If you're very observant, you'll note that this Gothic window is repeated on a smaller, more intimate scale in the master bath.

The house is one of three in a park-like enclave just above Monterey High School. Its entrance is marked by brick pillars, reminders of a past time when only one house occupied these premises. Now there are 3, and No. 209 is the first on your left. It's large (2800 sq. ft.), handsome with an exterior of rough sawn cedar siding, shake roof, and chimneys boxed in by cedar; and it's on two levels.

There's a 2-car garage at street level, and alongside it a deck leading to the entrance. You come into a small entry hall. The aforementioned living room is at right, and the master suite is at left. The dining area and well-equipped kitchen loop around the far-end of the living room. Two sets of French doors open to a large deck overlooking the rear garden.

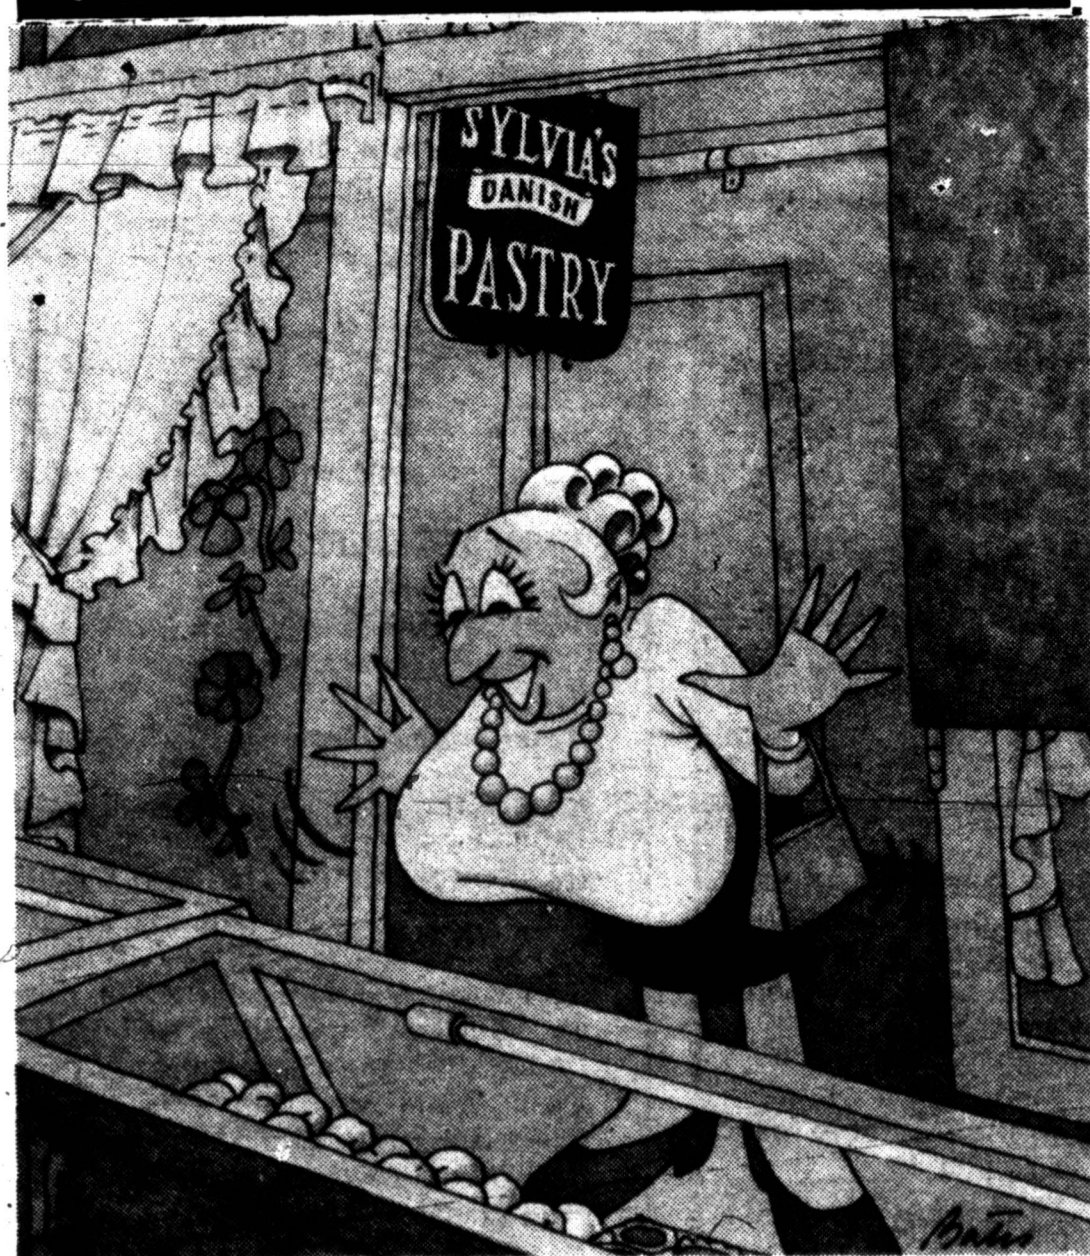

The master bedroom (other side of entrance hall) has a colonial fireplace across one corner, one of 3 fireplaces in the house. This bedroom is 18.6 x 14, deep carpeted, lighted by sunken spots, continuing the vaulted cedar ceiling. The bath is theatrically lighted, has connecting tub and shower, cedar ceiling, large skylight, two sinks, huge walk-in closet and a very private W.C.

Downstairs (reached by stairs from the living room and also by separate entrance on the lower level) are two sizeable bedrooms (12x15 each), 2 more baths, an enclosed laundry room, and a giant L-shaped family room. This has its own fireplace, many windows and enough space (24x23!) to house anything you want.

Nothing you could need or want has been left out of this house. It's gracious living, conveniently placed in one of the nicest areas of Monterey. You don't have to have a wedding here, but if it works out that way...$425,000.

P.S. Oh, sorry. There's a half-bath (powder room) just off the entrance hall, right where you need it.

CARMEL LEGENDS

No. 48

One of the problems afflicting the Carmel Post Office at this time of year is the presence in our community of one MR. S. CLAUS. Actually his name is SIMON, but many people (including some children) insist on misreading that. And therefore Mr. Claus gets scads of mail at this time of year, further clogging up the holiday laden traffic. The truth is, he occupies a substantial igloo at the Far North of Carmel, near the Father Serra statue. He employs a number of Elves who work diligently throughout the season, mostly answering the mail and creating sugar plums. (They are licensed by Harry & David as exclusive manufacturers of these delicacies). Mr. Claus explains that he was drawn to Carmel some years ago by the temperature of the ocean water which, he says, is roughly equivalent to the offshore tides at Point Barrow, his former home. "I decided to retire," he says, "after a few lifetimes of making and delivering toys to good little girls and boys around the world. And I chose Carmel." Well, that makes sense to us. We have always believed in SANTA CLAUS, and his decision confirms our faith. "I intend to stay here," he adds, "though I would appreciate it if you don't noise this about."
